Warrant article would change betterment plan

by Arlene Surprenant

If voters approve article four at the special town meeting December 16, Wilmington will have to find a way, other than betterments, to fund local sewer projects.

At their meeting Monday night, selectmen unanimously approved the eight article warrant which included the proposed change in funding submitted by Town Manager Michael Caira.

Article four asks voters to reconsider the present funding mechanism, which limits the town's share of the cost to 50 percent and requires abutters to pick up the remainder in betterment fees. In order to change the 50 percent requirement the town would have to petition the General Court to amend the Acts of 1958.

Caira told selectmen he submitted the article because of the recent outcry against proposed betterment costs to homeowners in the path of the Northeast Interceptor Sewer Project. He noted, in the past, federal and state grants helped defray those costs. Caira said there were some drawbacks to the article. These include charging all taxpayers for a service which will only be enjoyed by a few. He also raised the issue of possible abatements to homeowners currently paying betterments.

Selectman Mark Haldane favored the article saying since the sewer is beneficial to the entire town the cost should be shared by all. Fellow selectman Bob Cain agreed.

"This looks like a little bit of taxation without representation," noted Bob Doucette adding he feared there were too many unanswered questions.

Chairman Dan Ballou agreed to the article because it would give the voters "a voice" in the decision making process.

"This article here may have merit," he said.

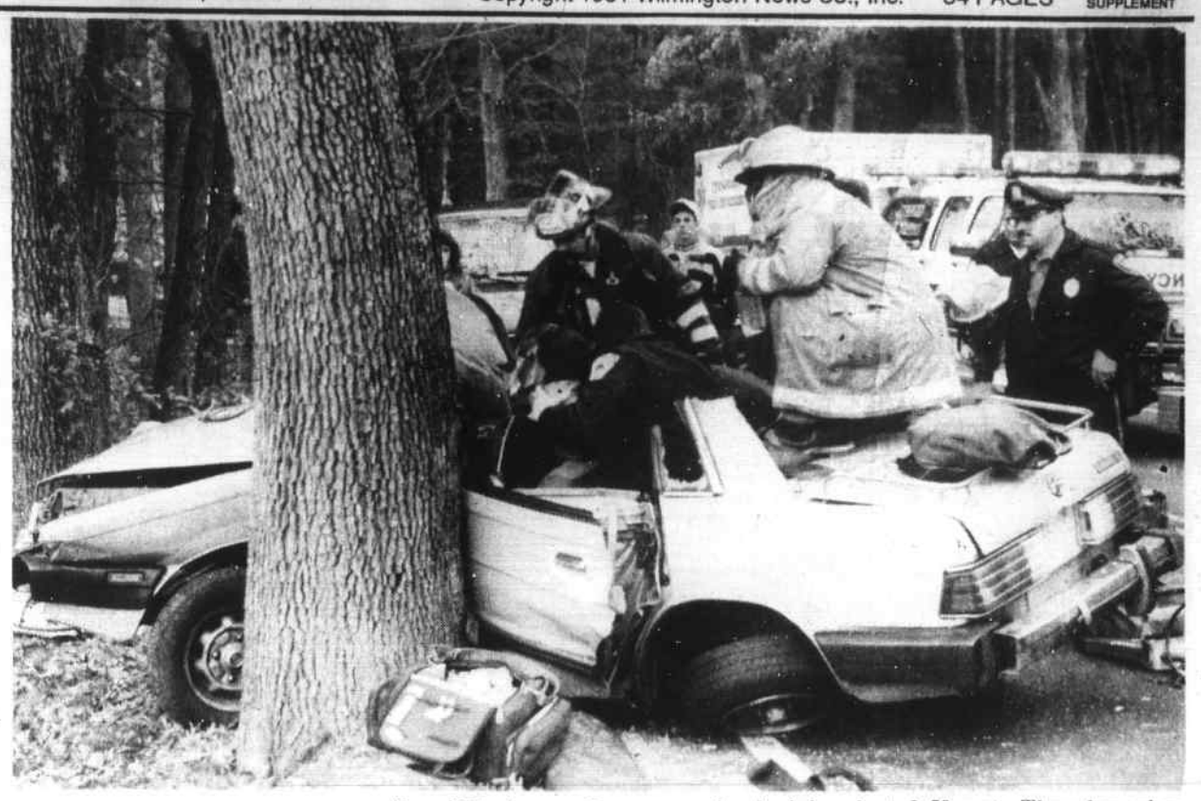

Caira explained if the article passes, sewer projects in the future could be paid by such methods as bond authorization or a debt exclusion.

Selectmen are also sponsoring four other articles. The remainder were submitted by local petitioners. Article one asks voters to amend the current budget to deal with a $416,869 deficit. Article two asks town meeting to clarify the intent of an article in the 1988 town meeting warrant which transferred two parcels to the housing authority for a home for autistic children. The housing authority would now like to use one of the lots on Houghton Road for an affordable home to be developed by the Wilmington Community Development Corporation, according to WHA Executive Director Ella Belmore.

Article three asks the town to reconsider an article at last April's town meeting to appropriate $7,000 for the construction of the Northeast Interceptor Sewer System. Haldane suggested passing over this article until next year's annual town meeting in the light of the need for an EIR (Environmental Impact Report).

Article five seeks authorization for selectmen to sell a parcel of surplus town land on the easterly side of St. Paul Street. The lot is 3,000 square feet and is assessed at $1500 according to Caira.

Articles six through eight were submitted by local residents and ask respectively, to rescind funding for the controversial sewer project, to rezone parcels on Hopkins Street from R60 to R20, and to remove restrictions on a deed issued to Mary DelNinno.

Two injured

Two Billerica youths were seriously injured at 2:50 p.m. Thursday when their car skidded and hit a tree broadside on Aldrich Road near the Billerica line. Driver Michael Gerade, 17 of Sachem Road and Richard Loveless III, 16, were each flown by helicopter. Loveless was taken to Mass General, and Gerade to Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston. A third passenger in the car, Robert White, escaped injury.

Landing zone

The parking lot at the Shawsheen School in Wilmington served as a landing site for two Med-Flight helicopters on Thursday afternoon. They were brought to Wilmington to transport two youths seriously injured in the accident on Aldrich Road.

Commissioners shocked at environmental study for sewer

by Arlene Surprenant

Water and Sewer Commissioners seemed stunned Wednesday upon learning they would have to prepare an Environmental Impact Report (EIR) for the Northeast Interceptor Sewer Project. The Commission had requested a waiver from the Massachusetts Environmental Policy Act (MEPA) requirement. MEPA officials denied the waiver and asked that an EIR be submitted because of the amount of wetlands impacted by the sewer work.

In a meeting last week with Town Manager Michael Caira and Project Manager Emile Hamwey, commissioners likened MEPA's unexpected decision to "dropping a bomb."

"I thought the Conservation Commission with their order of conditions covered us," said Commissioner Noel Baratta.

"I thought they did MEPA's job for them," noted Caira. He added it was his feeling the scope of work in the MEPA decision was the same as that in the order of conditions.

Hamwey, who is affiliated with Fay, Spofford and Thorndike, pointed out it is rare for an EIR to be required with a strong order of conditions such as was placed on the Wilmington project. He did add, however, that MEPA may have felt the Conservation Commission left "an open door" by allowing the hearing process to be reopened to discuss such things as construction techniques. According to Conservation Administrator Eileen Chabot, the "open door" was placed in the order because more details were needed that weren't forthcoming from the water and sewer commission.

In ensuing discussion, officials tried to determine how MEPA arrived at its decision. Baratta said he discussed the issue with MEPA spokesman Dave Shepardson and learned that agency was unhappy with the lack of an approved plan for the disposal of hazardous waste at one site, with the lack of a 1990 update of the town's Master Sewer Plan, and lack of an outline of construction techniques which was promised but never delivered.

Officials felt some of the letters written by residents and other state agencies may have played a large part in the decision.

"If there was no public outcry they might have looked at this differently," said Hamwey. Baratta called the letter from the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority "a real clincher" because that agency questioned capacity constraints downstream. Baratta said he informed Shepardson Wilmington's sewer assessment covers the town's right to expand its sewer line.

"That's what we're paying for," he said adding "politics" may have had something to do with the MEPA decision.

Board Chairman Arthur Smith noted whatever is done today will have a long range effect for the next 20 years. He said commissioners are only trying to put the sewer line in the path of Wilmington's wellfields so all pollutants can be drawn out of the town's water supply. Smith said the nursing home on West Street has withdrawn its $150,000 donation to help defray the six million dollar cost of the new line and General Electric will follow suit with its one million dollar donation if work doesn't begin within six months.

Caira was angry that neither himself nor the water and sewer department received a copy of the decision or accompanying correspondence from residents. He suggested the next step might be to improve communication with MEPA and set up a meeting of town and state officials to discuss the EIR requirement. Hamwey agreed.

"Somehow we've got to bridge the gap of no communication that exists right now. What I think is at stake here is the entire concept of sewering this community," he said.

Baratta pointed out the EIR could cost the town between $200,000 and $300,000 and take up to a year to complete. All seemed to agree MEPA's decision could have far reaching effects on the town's Master Plan and could delay the sewer project for years.

On Monday, Caira informed selectmen the meeting between town and state officials had taken place that same day. No other information was forthcoming.

School committee votes tonight on retaining Fay

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington School Committee is expected to take action tonight (Wednesday) on Supt. William Fay's Contract. Members had voted four to three to table the issue until tonight.

Last week Fay requested that members reopen his contract, which runs through December 1992, in order for him to waive his scheduled seven percent salary increase for next year. He said "in view of the financial crisis in which we find ourselves, I feel it is appropriate that I waive my scheduled 1992 salary increase in its entirety."

School Attorney Alan Altman reminded the board unless members notify Fay in writing by December 1 of this year of their intent to terminate his current contract, that contract will continue to rollover almost indefinitely. Members were undecided on the best course of action.

Dr. Shirley Callan and Peg Kane spoke out in favor of notifying Fay that his contract was being terminated so they could renegotiate the entire document. Dr. Callan said her intent was not to fire the superintendent but rather to be more responsible in today's fiscal climate and renegotiate a tighter document. She pointed out that Fay is presently getting several perks including a $200 per month expense account and life insurance.

"We have to protect ourselves and protect the town," Dr. Callan said.

Kane noted the first step to a renegotiated agreement would be the termination of the current contract.

"It's only fair to all of us to terminate this contract and start over," she said.

Bob Peterson did not support the idea of terminating the agreement. He seemed to feel that would open the door to a search for another administrator. Chairman Aldo Caira asked how members could enter negotiations without first ending the current contract. In a letter to the board, Fay asked that a reopening of the agreement be limited to two paragraphs covering "term" and "compensation." The entire document covers 25 items. He also said he would be unwilling to reopen the entire contract. In the end the board tabled its decision until a special committee meeting tonight.

Neighbors unhappy with progress on abating odors at Raffi & Swanson

by Arlene Surprenant

Residents in South Wilmington continue to express dissatisfaction and frustration with the slow process to abate odors in their neighborhood. At Monday's board of health meeting, the Scolastico family and their neighbor, Eric Creegan, told members they were tired of waiting for a resolution to odors emanating from the Raffi and Swanson plant on Eames Street.

"I'm totally unhappy with the whole situation, said Tom Scolastico. His wife Vera agreed saying she was "completely disgusted."

Both said they had smelled odors coming from the plant on November 6, 14 and 15. Board Chairman Jim Ficociello said there had been no confirmation of the odors and, until there was, no fines can be issued for those specific complaints. However, other fines had been issued in the past when odors were verified by Health Director Greg Erickson, said Ficociello.

When asked about suspected groundwater contamination from plant chemicals, Ficociello said this was out of his board's jurisdiction. He reiterated his board could go to court only to enforce violations concerning odors and quality of life. Ficociello offered to contact the Department of Environmental Protection on the contamination issue and said the neighbors could follow through with DEP and their state representatives. Tom Scolastico Jr. argued that the side effects of the odors, such as headaches, are a health issue and should concern the board.

"This has been going on for 35 years. This is your town, too," said Vera.

Erickson explained the best approach is to make Raffi and Swanson responsible for developing a way to solve the problem. The board continues to meet with company President James Raffi on a regular basis to learn what steps are being taken to abate the odors. On Monday, Raffi told the board officials were proceeding with flow tests, which is a prerequisite for any new equipment design. Officials were also contacting other companies for advice and looking into such options as improving the scrubber and bio-filtration to resolve the problem, said Raffi.

During the meeting the board set up a sub-committee meeting for this Thursday at 3 p.m. at town hall. The sub committee is made up of representatives from the plant, the board of health, the neighborhood, and DEP and meets to discuss related issues and gather technical information on the odor problem. Erickson said he would write a letter to DEP relaying neighbors' concerns.

Employee courses offered by schools

by Arlene Surprenant

Though no vote was taken Wednesday, Wilmington School Committeemen seemed to give the green light to a plan to use two classrooms at the high school to train or retrain local business personnel in computers and basic writing skills.

According to Al Fessenden, coordinator of the business/school partnership, local businesses have shown an interest in the plan, which would be a way for the school system to give something back to Wilmington companies , which have supported local schools. He said a survey revealed that the partnership could best help by offering the courses after school hours one day a week for eight weeks.

Most committee members favored the idea.

I think it's excellent. It will start showcasing what we have in Wilmington," said John DeMarco.

Andrea Paglia said she had no problem with the way the program would be set up and recognized that the schools are getting many donations from local firms.

"It's a win win situation. It supplies further bonding (with businesses)," said Supt. William Fay. He pointed out the proposal would bring in revenue through tuition fees and provide extra work for teachers.

According to Fessenden the course offerings would also benefit companies by resulting in less travel time for employees, lower tuition fees, and less time lost by making courses available in the late afternoon.

Chairman Aldo Caira questioned why any profits would go into the partnership account instead of going directly to the school department. Partnership funds indirectly help schools by funding mini grants to teachers, paying for school activities, and other items. Fay said the money could be funneled to the school department provided a legitimate revolving account could be set up.

"My whole thing is accountability," explained Caira adding, "I think the program's great; don't get me wrong."

Peg Kane noted there was still some "cloudiness" over the partnership, especially over Fessenden's role in it. Fay said they should stick to the issue.

When John DeMarco asked if they could delay a decision on the classroom use, Fessenden said that could delay the whole proposal. He said he hoped to begin classes after the holidays.

McDonough Corp. faces civil suit

by Arlene Surprenant

Town Counsel Alan Altman will file a civil suit against C.P. McDonough Construction Corp. for failing to obey an order from the Wilmington Board of Health to clean out junk and debris from property on Ainsworth Road. If the town wins its case, the company could face fines of up to $25,000 a day for each day the nuisance persists. In a civil suit, the money comes back to the town.

Health Director Greg Erickson had pursued a criminal case against the corporation for six months. He lost his case two weeks ago when a Woburn Court judge declared defendant Coleman McDonough, the company's owner, not guilty. Erickson told this paper he lost because the corporation was not named in the suit. He said he changed the papers at the last minute and put McDonough's name in place of the corporation at the insistence of a court clerk.

Changes proposed in liquor licenses

by Arlene Surprenant

Though they took no action on a request to lift three restrictions on local restauranteur's liquor license, the Wilmington Board of Selectmen gave Rocco DePasquale the green light to pursue an entertainment license through the board of appeals.

The former selectmen and owner of Rocco's Restaurant on Main Street met with selectmen Monday seeking several changes on the liquor license issued to restaurants. DePasquale's license expires this December 31.

In 1972 voters allowed restaurants having 100 or more seats to serve alcoholic beverages. That law was placed on the ballot at the instigation of DePasquale. Selectmen, in turn, placed eight conditions or restrictions on local liquor licenses. DePasquale argued that in the interest of allowing local restaurants to be competitive with those in neighboring towns, selectmen ought to amend or lift the following three conditions: that liquor only be served in a dining room, that a bar or lounge be prohibited from Wilmington facilities, and that a full menu be available during operating hours.

"We've operated above board in the past and haven't tried to skirt the restrictions. But (now) I can't compete," DePasquale told this paper, referring to smaller shops with a lower overhead.

DePasquale told selectmen he would like to hire a piano player from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday nights for an informal sing-a-long type atmosphere with only snacks and beverages available instead of full meals. In order to make his plan a reality and compete in these tough times, DePasquale said he would need a revised license and approval of the appeals board, since entertainment use is not currently allowed in the zoning bylaws.

"I don't want to go through the process and find the board of selectmen is not in favor of it," said the restauranteur.

"I can't see any reason why the process shouldn't go forward," said Mark Haldane.

"Everyone's feeling the pinch today. We want to be able to help and be positive," added Selectman Chairman Dan Ballou.

Some officials noted a public hearing would be required, either through the board of selectmen, the board of appeals, or both. Selectmen will begin signing 1992 licenses next month. DePasquale told the Town Crier if he doesn't hear from selectmen on his request, he plans to return to the board in December to see if revisions are possible before the new licenses are signed and go into effect.

Gifted program back on track

by Arlene Surprenant

After hearing an eloquent plea by one parent to retain the school's gifted and talented program, members of the Wilmington School Committee last week voted five to two to reconsider previous action and hire three teachers for the after school classes. Those hired were Phyllis Bilowz for the Shawsheen School, Coral Stratos for the Woburn Street and Wildwood Schools, and Sandra Curtin for the West Intermediate. In addition, Supt. William Fay was directed to come up with someone to fill the position at the North Intermediate.

Don Cassidy, who has a fifth grader in the program at the Woburn Street School, told committeemen when they refused to vote in program leaders, "all of us felt this was a real blow to us." He argued, if gifted youngsters aren't offered special classes, they could be at higher risk for misbehavior, psychological, and drug problems as well as suicide. Cassidy called the program a necessity.

The gifted and talented program went from an in-school program costing $40,000 to an after-school program costing $4,000. At their last meeting, committeemen refused to fund teachers for the classes because of the growing deficit. On Wednesday, committee members learned their $200,000 share of the town's deficit was now $188,000. Peg Kane, who voted against hiring a teacher at the Shawsheen School, reversed her decision when contacted by Cassidy.

"My only concern was money," said Kane, adding, "I really think we need to hear from the public."

Dr. Shirley Callan remained firm in her vote against hiring the teachers saying, "At this point in time I'm against spending any more money."

"It's not just money, it's just kids," said Phil Fenton.

In related business the board voted four to three to hire Rita Boudreau as a part time secretary at the central office. As part of her job, Boudreau will take minutes at school committee meetings. The job pays $15,000.

New owner tries to reassure ConCom

The new owner of an eight lot subdivision said he would work with the Wilmington Conservation Commission and comply with wetlands concerns on two of the four lots he will develop. However, Mark Lopez said he wasn't totally comfortable with following the old order of conditions since a Certificate of Compliance was already in place on the project. Usually, a certificate is issued when work is complete.

Ownership of the Allenhurst Farm subdivision recently passed from local developer Jim Banda to Lopez. Banda suffered financial setbacks when his bonding company went bankrupt and was forced to find a new owner for the incomplete subdivision off Woburn Street.

At their last meeting, commissioners were unhappy with what may have been a premature decision to issue a Certificate of Compliance to the previous owner.

"I'll never issue a Certificate of Compliance again. We may have done something we could regret," said Chairman Dennis Poltrino. Reportedly, Banda put a stipulation in the deed making the new owner subject to conservation controls but Poltrino said it wasn't as strong as it could be.

Conservation Administrator Eileen Chabot acknowledged that legally, "he (Lopez) really doesn't have to follow the old order."

BUNCHING UP EXPENSES

End-of-the-year tax planning traditionally calls for deferring income until the following year, and gathering as many deductible expenses as possible for the current year. New thinking may be advised.

Now that there is a floor of two percent of adjusted gross income (AGI) under miscellaneous itemized deductions and a floor of 7.5 percent of AGI under medical deductions, many taxpayers cannot qualify to write off these expenses in a single year. Could you double up though?

Assume, for ease of arithmetic, an AGI of $100,000. If it's difficult to top $2,000 in miscellaneous expenses this year, you might be able to top that figure next year by delaying payment of this year's obligations. Medical expenses are even more difficult to deduct, with a $7,500 floor. Elective surgery, though, or dental treatments, could be moved sooner or later to bunch up expenses.

In case of the Alternative Minimum Tax, however, the rules change and deductions are no longer advantageous. Put them off for next year.

Mini grants

The Shawsheen School PAC has provided $3000 in mini-grants for educational materials for the school. Teachers Nancy Murphy and Martha Mahoney display big books and book bags, which were among the many items purchased with the money. At right is Bonny Smith, president of the PAC.

Employers needed for work-study program

The Wilmington Public Schools/Business Partnership Program is constantly seeking employers interested in participating in the high school's Work Study Program. This program is designed to provide employment opportunities to high school students which are incorporated into the student's educational plan.

This cooperative program enables students to earn high school credit while gaining experience in a supervised working atmosphere. In addition to filling part time positions, it also allows employers the chance to train on a part-time basis future full time workers.

These employment opportunities being offered through the Work Study Office are open to the entire student body and not limited to only Work Study students. Prospective employers are encouraged to seek out students with specific skills whenever a job may dictate specific requirements.

Employers may contact Mr. Alan Fessenden, Work Study/Business Partnership Coordinator, at 694-6068 for more information.

Abstract art on display

The Wilmington Council for the Arts will present this Thanksgiving Weekend a special exhibition of paintings as part of its continuing series of Autumn Art Events. Under the heading of "About Abstraction," the showing will bring together the work of three Wilmington painters - Marguerite Elia, Francis Toohey and Tina Prentiss - who forgo faithful observation of a natural world in favor of a more personal, non-representational "abstraction" of subject matter. Through perhaps something new for the Wilmington Art Center, in fact, abstract painting is a time-honored tradition in the history of art, with beginnings that can be traced to the stylized cave murals of Ice Age painters. The 1950s saw the ultimate surrender to completely non- representational painting with the purely American innovation known as the Abstract Expressionist school spearheaded by the late Jackson Pollack. The work featured in "About Abstraction" covers the full range of non-literal painting styles.

Marguerite Elia is a longtime Salem Street resident whose concern for form and color, lyrical, free brushwork and eclectic palette are well known to recent Wilmington Art Center exhibitions. A member of the Wilmington Council for the Arts, Mrs. Elia studied fashion design and painting before developing her signature style which can interpret natural forms or painterly invention with equal skill. Her work already is represented in the permanent collection of the Art Center.

Francis Toohey has a background that includes studies at the Massachusetts College of Art and practical experience in both design and the graphics field. His recent acrylic paintings with the metaphysical themes are considered bold and experimental. He has exhibited in Boston, Provincetown, and Wilmington - most recently at the Cortland Jessup Gallery in Provincetown with a interrelated media installation entitled "The Laboratory of Doctor Faust." A lifelong Auburn Avenue resident, Toohey also is a past recipient of a Wilmington Arts Lottery Grant.

One of Wilmington's most well known artists, Tina Prentiss of Eames Street, is the third participant in the abstract show. Renowned mainly for her three dimensional work and pioneering use of lucite in the 1960s, Ms. Prentiss, has been honored with 15 solo shows and inclusion in six museum exhibitions. Her "Symbolic Portraits"have been collected by the Smithsonian in Washington, D.C., Her bright, whimsical paintings reveal yet another facet to her talents.

"About Abstraction" will be on view at the Wilmington Art Center, 219 Main St., Wilmington, on Saturday, Nov. 30, beginning at 7 p.m. with a reception to meet the artists. The exhibit will continue for one day only, Sunday, December 1, from noon to 5 p.m. The exhibition is free and the public is encouraged to attend. The phone number of the Wilmington Council for the Arts is 508-657-3887.

Wilmington school news

Shawsheen School

The Craft Fair was a great success again this year. Thank you to all the coordinators and volunteers for all their hard work.

There has been some hottop painting done to the school playground area recently. This has been done under the direction of Mrs. Debi Gray with help from some school parents and Mr. Gorham. The paintings include a map of the U.S.A., a clock, four squares and hopscotches.

National Education Week is Nov. 17-22. All parents are invited to visit their children's classrooms "in action" on Thursday, Nov. 21. The PAC is presenting flower corsages and boutonnieres to all Shawsheen School teachers as well as volunteers from the business community who come in to read to the children on Tuesday, Nov. 19.

Congratulations to the following teachers whose mini-grant proposals were approved by the Shawsheen school PAC Mini-Grant Committee for funding:

Mrs. Nancy Murphy, kindergarten, for Big Books; Ms. Kathy Cronin, grade one for Big Books; Ms. Jean Latham , grades kindergarten through two for "Hands on Science;"Ms. Latham, Ms. Bakke, Ms. Peterson and Ms. Sadowski for "Math Their Way" materials, grades one and four; Mr. Bob Boucher, Ms. Yolanda Girouard and Ms. Mary Maxey for "Whole Class Reading" books, grade five; Ms. Martha Mahoney for "Book Bags;" Ms. Ann O'Neil for "Reading Kits."

A total of $3000.00 was awarded. The Mini-Grant Committee consists of Mrs. Gloria Graves, Mrs. Fran Carrozza, Mrs. Diane Leone and Mrs. Maureen Travis. Ms. Kathy Cronin served as the committee's teacher consultant.

The three elementary school Pacs have purchased a pass to the Children's Museum. It is available at the Wilmington Public Library to all Wilmington residents. Call the library ahead of time to reserve it as this pass is a most popular item, especially during school vacations.

The Pac has set aside dates for a Star Market Fundraiser. The Pac will receive five percent of all purchases made at Star Market by Shawsheen school families on the dates chosen: Feb. 4-6 and April 14-16. Specific information flyers will be sent out at the appropriate times.

Santa's Secret Workshop will be held Dec. 3-5 on the school stage. Children will be given an opportunity to come shop for the holiday season. Volunteers are needed on all days. Contact Mrs. Pat Moroney if you are able to help.

Meteorologist Bruce Schweogler will be coming to grades three through five December 18. All parents interested are invited to attend.

Any field trip photos would be greatly appreciated for the PAC news bulletin board outside the school library. You may leave them in the Pac mailbox in the office with your name so they may be returned to you if desired.

Next Thursday is Thanksgiving, the following Monday is Hanukkah and them comes Christmas. There is a Holiday Committee made up of parents and teachers working with Mr. Gorham to discuss the multi-cultural backgrounds of our students. They are hoping to make a multi-cultural awareness month during December. Anyone who would like to offer ideas is welcome to speak with Mr. Gorham.

Wildwood School

Fourth grade students recently completed a special unit on local government. After developing their own individual time lines, students moved on to learning about the history of Wilmington. With guest speaker Captain Larz Neilson, students learned what life was like here for the past two centuries. Students then established Wildcat City of the Wildwood Elementary School area. The students created their own official town colors, tree, bird and motto "Where the Wildcats Are." Each student was given a job ie: policeman, fire safety officer, nurse, traffic controller, etc. These jobs were performed within the town boundaries of their classroom. Final activities involved creating a map and collecting memorabilia to be placed in a class time capsule.

Parents are invited to visit their child's classroom Thursday, Nov. 21. Notices have been sent home regarding each classroom time visit. This is part of National Education Week, Nov. 18-22.

Students have been rehearsing for the school's forthcoming holiday program which is scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 10.

Important dates to remember: Noon, dismissal Wed., Nov. 27 beginning Thanksgiving holidays; Wed., Dec. 4, teachers inservice; Wed., Dec. 11, parent conferences.

Woburn Street School

Woburn Street School students had the opportunity to explore the world of sound through the use of modern keyboard this past Monday. The Pac sponsored enrichment program was demonstrated by musician Steve Cummings. Steves' Synthesizer Workshop for kids was well received by the students as they heard the many different ways the synthesizer can create, alter and combine sounds. Audience participation was encouraged and enjoyed by all. Thank you to the Pac for funding this music production.

Santa's Secret Workshop begins December 3 at the Woburn Street School. This exciting program gives the children the opportunity to purchase their own special holiday gifts for family and friends in a familiar, non-commercial atmosphere. This program teaches the children to budget their money, make decisions, and appreciate the value of different items. This year the students have been issued banks in which they can keep their earned extra money. This is a wonderful learning experience and lots of fun for everyone.

Wilmington's own Nu Beat Crew will be visiting and jamming with the third, fourth and fifth grade students this Friday, November 22. Nu Beat Crew has made numerous appearances at the school and are always warmly welcomed by all.

The next Pac meeting will be held Thursday, Dec. 5 at 9:30 a.m. in the cafeteria. Please join us for our annual Christmas Craft.

A rock of integrity

by Larz F. Neilson

Somehow all the nice things you can say about a person just don't go far enough to describe Betty Keough. She was a good friend, a tireless worker for the elderly, kind, generous and a rock of integrity.

Betty Keough died on Tuesday.

A quiet person, she had served as a member of the Wilmington Housing Authority, where she was one of the least political but most effective persons to serve in recent memory. Although her term on the Housing Authority was brief, she was a regular at the meetings for several years.

During a renovation of the elderly units at Deming Way, Betty was the person who was in charge of coordinating the moving of tenants, a job which she covered quite well. Each tenant had to be moved out of his or her unit, to allow major work in the apartment, and it was Betty's job to mitigate the effects of the move on the tenants.

The job was typical of what Betty did. She had a way with people which conveyed sincere caring and respect for others.

The tenants of Deming Way had a true friend in Betty. She and her husband Mel would often put on dinners for the residents, paying the expenses themselves. When a tenant had a problem, it would be Betty that would come through with the needed help.

In a world where it is common to find fault with public officials, Betty Keough was beyond reproach. She was not a person to throw stones, so to speak, for the sake of political gain. Neither was she one to boast of her accomplishments. It would not surprise this writer to learn of many other unsung good deeds, done for no other reason than to help.

She was a good friend to many people in Wilmington.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Re: Ms. Brewer's letter ad concom meeting notes.

Once again the polliwogs, pickerel, perch, bloodsuckers and geese are being threatened in our only natural resource: Silver Lake.

In the summer of "91" the birds were bleeping - The Canons were roaring. The birds wiggled away to a further shore; the cannoneers fired some more.

The officials and those concerned covered the front page with worry over the bleeps. Where are they now when the destruction of the lake is about to happen. Don't the officials understand what enjoyment a boy gets when he strings his line out, don't they understand the beauty of a heron, the cycle of a bloodsucker?

I think that the people of Silver Lake and all of Wilmington should remember those who sat back and bleeped while Silver Lake was destroyed.

Gerry O'Reilly

Dear Larz:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the parents, supporters, and friends who gave their time and talents to make the 4th Annual Applefest Craft Fair such a huge success. Many countless hours go into the planning and the operation of the fair.

Thank you to everyone who purchased raffle tickets for the cash raffle. The winners of the raffle were, Mr. Robert McDougall who won $500.00, Sandra Ryan $400.00, Mr. Leo Martin $300.00, the Torode Family $200.00 and Chris McGrath $100.00. Congratulations to the winners.

All proceeds from the fair go to the Friends of Tewksbury High School Scholarship Fund and the scholarships are awarded at the Annual Awards Night which is held at the high school.

Water & politics

by George R. Allan

Politics influences water policy and vice versa. Recent events provide examples on the local, national and international scene.

Anyone reading the Boston newspapers is familiar with the seemingly endless political harangues that center around the MWRA. For example, the current state budget contains a provision where MWRA water users would be assessed an extra 15 cents for every 1000 gallons withdrawn from the state owned Quabbin Reservoir. This "water tax" would go to the state coffers. In effect, only the rate payers in the MWRA district would be helping bail out the state. Thankfully, Wilmington is not part of the MWRA water district. The MWRA has filed suit to block what it terms this "illegal tax" by the state.

Nationally, water may have contributed to the recent defeat of a referendum in Washington state that would have limited the terms of its Congressmen. One of the arguments against this draconian term limitation proposal was that Washington would lose its clout in Congress, thus giving more power to the California delegation. Residents of Washington are suspicious and fearful of California's thirst for the Columbia River. The thinking was that if Washington lost its seniority, including Speaker Thomas F. Foley, the large California delegation would be able to pass legislation allowing the diversion of more water from the Columbia River to sunny California.

Another political battle over water is developing in a remote Colorado River valley. Here the residents are in a court fight with a large Denver corporation that wants to tap their underground water supplies with deep wells. The issue is whether to allow the water to be exported to other parts of Colorado, New Mexico and Texas. Local farmers are concerned about the adverse effect the diversion will have on their irrigation needs. The state has also joined the fight saying that the proposed wells would decrease the flow of the Rio Grande River.

While water seldom makes front page headlines, in the current Israel-Arab negotiations, it may become one of the most significant regional issues to be discussed. The Arabs believe that Israel is exploiting the area's water resources at their expense. Resolution of the water problem may form the foundation of a lasting peace.

Much of the land won by Israel in the 1967 war contains some of the most valuable water supplies. Since most of the Middle East is arid, control of the groundwater and rivers is essential for economic growth. When Israel seized the West Bank from Jordan, it not only secured its eastern borders, but also obtained access to a large aquifer, which is now being tapped by high capacity wells. They supply the new settlements that have sprung up in the hills along the West Bank. The major river in the area is the Jordan River. When Israel secured the Golan Heights from Syria, it was able to protect and control the Jordan River, which flows into Lake Galilee. This historic lake is the major source of water supply for Israel and its protection is obviously of utmost importance.

Because of water's importance to our physical and economic health, politicians since the days of the Romans have tried to influence water policy. While it is not realistic to expect this influence to be eradicated, the thirst for power should not be at the expense of our drinking water.

frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

There are two annoying aspects to cable television. One is MTV, the other is the new Outer Limits series, Wednesday nights on LGTV (local government television). There should be a voice-over just before the gavel strikes to open another Bill Fay-bashing-session. "Do not adjust your vertical or horizontal hold. There is nothing wrong with your television set. We are in complete control." Or better yet, a Rod Serling reproduction, "Presented for your consideration . . . Mrs. Shirley Callan, Phd., et al"

Last week's tirade — the 47th — on Superintendent Bill Fay's contract proves there's nothing worse on the boob tube than a repeat episode. As the committee grapples with the package negotiated with Fay in 1989, Callan, the only member who was there then and now, suggests that this and that was done illegally.

The real heavy and deep stuff came when The Doctor protested that "it was done behind closed doors."

I know this is the Outer Limits but when has anyone's contract not been negotiated behind closed doors? It's been the domain of executive sessions since superintendents have been around, similar to The Doctor's own contract last year with the Lowell Public Schools.

Tony Accardi is an Outer Limits junkie, familiar with the pain involved in watching and the requisite that it not be done immediately following dinner — like when you shouldn't go to Silver Lake. "These are the innuendoes that drive you crazy," said Accardi, who chaired the school committee in 1989 and, along with Callan, negotiated Fay's contract. Accardi maintains that then-school counsel Harold Kowal "went through the contract with a fine tooth comb" and that Callan's complaints on Fay's mileage allowance are ironic "because she pulled a no-show" the night the committee approved it in 1989. Kowal had been retained, incidentally, at Fay's recommendation.

But last Wednesday night was probably one of the less frightening Outer Limits episodes. There were no job reviews passed in from Callan's compatriot Peggy Kane, like the one last year calling the world's attention to Mr. Fay's drab wardrobe and his dire need for a subscription to GQ. Instead, we got a candy-coated speech to teachers defending their "commitment" to public education, a stellar pledge, undoubtedly born-again with $2.7 million (her figures) in cool, cash incentive.

Was this the same Peggy Kane who condemned the teachers' contract weeks earlier? Talk about a political double shuffle.

Last week's edition of the Outer Limits reminded me of the Carol Sager days. The past superintendent, who preceded cable coverage, suffered under fire at the expense of being able to effectively administer. "It educationally handicapped her," said former chairman Accardi. Tragically, Fay has been similarly handicapped. The school committee marauders don't appreciate what he can do for kids and the system.

There's an old story about John Stella, the interim superintendent of two years ago. Stella gave Fay the protocol tour during the last superintendent search process. Kids and teachers literally came out of classrooms and offices to greet him, more often than not offering embraces of deep and long held affection. "We hired him because he was an absolutely uniting force in the school system," said Accardi.

But Callan keeps lecturing us on mileage and expenses. However, she never mentioned last Wednesday that she has her own expense voucher pending for the November trek to Cape Cod for the school committee convention — courtesy of you, her adoring constituency.

Registration was $100.00, her room $196.00, and her mileage and expense report are presently pending. The total cost for her jaunt to Hyannis last year, which came about the same time she was complaining about the schools' phone bills, was just under $500.00

Briefly in Politics . . .

The Boston Herald, apparently not showing any respect for the deceased, took a shot right over the bow on Friday accusing the late Representative Fred F. Cain of influence peddling on Beacon Hill for personal financial gain.

Herald editorial writer Rachelle G. Cohen said Cain's family members were major stockholders of Solid State Technologies, the Woburn firm (then in Wilmington) awarded the first contract to install the now-familiar motorist aid call boxes along the stretches of Massachusetts highways. Solid State won the bid about 1974 when Rep. Cain, a Democrat, held a seat on the powerful House Ways and Means Committee.

"The state got call boxes, a powerful Democrat (Cain) made a buck or two," wrote Cohen last Friday.

Since the 70's, the call-boxes have been criticized by public safety officials for their ineffectiveness. If you ever get stuck by box number 6555, you might as well slash your wrists, said one local motorist.

Meanwhile, a new $6.3 million contract has been awarded to replace the existing system with a solar-powered cellular phone network. The new contract, having nothing to do with Cain, is being investigated by the House Post-Audit Committee.

Wilmington Selectman Bob Cain, who ran for his father's House seat, said he was "surprised" by the article and that his father "was always committed to improving public safety, and the call boxes addressed that."

25 years ago

The November 24, 1966 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Harold E. Melzar of Lake Street, veteran official of the town and a retired financial advisor, is again the temporary town manager of Wilmington. He was reappointed temporary town manager to replace Richard Hennenberger in an emergency meeting of the board of selectmen Monday morning. Mr. Melzar ably filled the position in 1961 following the resignation of Cecil Lancaster.

Rotary President Bill Butt and Mrs. Butt were pictured listening to music of a barbershop quartet during Rotary's annual Ladies Night at the Colonial in Lynnfield.

Marine Corporal James O'Hara of South Street, was serving with Marine Corp in Vietnam.

The first meeting of the Sons of Italy Lodge in Wilmington was held November 17 with about 50 people present.

Among those pictured rehearsing for the high school play, were Dave Boeri, Dorsey Patterson, Tanis Moody, Judy Irwin, Andy Krey and Mike Caira.

An efficiency apartment near Avco and Route 93 was offered for rent at $90 per month including heat and lights.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I'm certain that I'm not alone in being outraged at Kevin Sowyrda's column of Nov. 6. After several years of reading "Frankly Speaking" I am not at all surprised by the sophomoric tone and juvenile name calling. It was the unusually vicious and mean-spirited substance (what little there was of it) that got my attention this time.

There is no question that the issue of pay raises for teachers is a sensitive one. At a time when unemployment hovers at nine percent it may seem unreasonable, at first blush, that anyone should receive a raise. However, the issue is not as simple as Mr. Sowyrda would have us believe.

Mr. Sowyrda describes a teachers' union that is somehow so powerful that they are able to demand and receive whatever raises they want. I'm not sure where he gets his information, but last I knew the teachers had a contract with the town. That means negotiations. That means that two parties must come to an agreement. That means that the School Committee or the Board of Selectmen (or both) are at least partly responsible.

Furthermore, the union leadership that Mr. Sowyrda is so critical of is elected by the union membership to represent their interests. Did he really expect those leaders to turn down the raises that the town offered? Were they supposed to explain to the membership on whose behalf they were negotiating that the town had offered a two percent raise for the next year but the union negotiators had talked the town into no raise at all? Is this his idea of how collective bargaining works? My point is that the teachers alone do not determine their salaries. They take part in a process in which the two parties must share responsibility for the outcome. They cannot be faulted for accepting the best deal that is offered them.

The larger problem with Mr. Sowyrda's mindless attack is that it misses the whole point. The problem is not that teachers make too much money, but that there is no money for any public services. For years we've watched taxes being cut on the local, state, and federal level. Mr. Sowyrda has applauded these moves at every turn whether it's Question 3, Prop 2 1/2, or capital gains. Does he really believe that these cuts could go on forever with no cuts in services? The tax cut pigeons have finally come home to roost.

This attack on teacher's salaries is a desperate act by those who desperately wish to believe that they can get something for nothing. If we want quality education we must be willing to pay for it. The real question is not should we pay for it, but how do we pay for it. I would much rather be reading columns dealing with the inequities inherent in a flat state income tax or with why property taxes are a lousy way to pay for education,. The ensuing debate might even be constructive.

These are indeed difficult times. Frustration runs high but singling out a small group to bear the brunt of one's anger at a situation that they did not create and have little power to change is not only unproductive but divisive. To do so in print is just plain cruel. The last thing we need is this sort of pettiness and back-biting. If solutions are to be found, they will be found by working together as a community. The teachers of Wilmington are a valued part of this community and do not deserve the treatment that Mr. Sowyrda and the Town Crier have given them.

Sincerely,
Bob Mendelson

Dear Larz:

I am responding to the article that was printed last week about the teacher who had passed away.

On November 6, 1991, I was sitting in room 206, Mr. Domigan's third period math class, facing the substitute who had been there her second day. None of the kids had thought he was deathly ill. We all just figured that he had a cold. When an announcement came on I noticed that Mr. Babcock was standing at the door. As we were listening to the announcement, we realized something was wrong. When Mr. Fleming announced that Mr. Domigan had passed away that morning, I can not describe the feeling I got. The class was silent. As we stood up for a moment of silence, I started crying.

While walking down the hall to the guidance office, I noticed that there were a lot of teachers, students and custodians crying. After the bell rang I noticed five other students were sitting in the office.

We all got together and decided to put together a fundraiser to have flowers sent to his wake in the shape of WHS teacher.

The students showed they cared and for two days there was a great outcome of the fundraiser. The rest of the money will either be sent to the Lahey Clinic Foundation or we will do something else that we have not yet decided.

Paul Domigan deserves all the credit he may get. He was a wonderful teacher, but also a good friend. All of his students at WHS will remember Nov. 6 the day a wonderful man died. We miss you, Mr. Domigan.

Yours truly,
Virginia Kardosz
WHS sophomore

Dear Larz:

Saturday, November 9, 1991 was "Applefest" Day at Tewksbury Memorial High School. The total operation involved over 150 crafters, 30 volunteer parents and faculty members and well over 1500 supporters. Why did they come? They came in answer to the call of Mrs. Paula Coppola and her husband Charles. They came to help support the seniors at Tewksbury Memorial High School. They came because of Paula Coppola. They knew with Paula as a driving force, it would be a worthwhile activity to support.

The "Friends of Tewksbury Memorial High School" under Paula's leadership four years ago crated the Applefest Crafts Fair.

Its main purpose was to collect funds for scholarships, to be distributed to the seniors on Awards Night in June. The money was given to students who received less than $500.00 in awards. Their names were placed in a hat and the winners were those students whose names were drawn from the hat.

During the first three years, over $11,500 was awarded to students thanks to Paula, the members of the Friends of Tewksbury Memorial High School and of course Charlie working the 50/50 or raffle.

How does one say, "Thank You" for the over $7500 collected this year for the students at Tewksbury Memorial High School? Knowing Paula Coppola as I do, her thanks are received from seeing those smiles of the students who come on stage to collect their awards.

As principal of Tewksbury Memorial High School and representing the staff and students, let me formally thank all who have made the Applefest a success. In particular let me express my appreciation to Paula Coppola. For without her many hours of hard work, those smiles on the faces of the Friends of Tewksbury Memorial High School award winners would not be a reality each June. Thanks Paula.

Mr. William J. DeGregorio,
Principal

USA Today's Adopt-A-School Program

Winchester Hospital has become a partner in education with Wilmington High School and the JFK Memorial Middle School, Woburn.

Through USA Today's Adopt-a-School Program and funding by Winchester Hospital, students in Mr. Joyce's class and Mr. Leen's library are using Classline, USA Today's education program.

Classline is a unique Newspaper in Education Program that was developed by USA Today to teach both learning skills and content.

Using USA Today in the classroom will help students make the connection between what they are learning in school and the "real world." Students begin to feel part of the adult world when they read a newspaper.

A state-of-the-art lesson plan written by a special editorial team and transmitted by satellite just hours before classes begin, will provide background on that day's news stories as well as suggested teaching activities.

At the completion of the program, students will be presented with recognition certificates acknowledging their participation and the Winchester Hospital's contribution as a supporter of education in the community.

point of view

Cressman deserves credit, not dismissal

by Bill Conlon

As if the political landscape in Tewksbury wasn't bumpy enough, we now have Mrs. Jeanne Camara considering a run for selectman.

Tom Camara rode to victory in the 1991 selectmen's election in large measure because of voter dissatisfaction with the way Charlie Coldwell handled the board of appeals. Simply put, Camara was the only candidate who stepped up to the plate at a juncture when people wanted to vote against the incumbent.

Camara has threatened, but has not yet filed, a lawsuit against the town seeking millions in damages over what he says are illegal practices and civil rights violations made by the town concerning investigation of his yard at 5 Washington Street. The town claims Camara's yard holds hazardous materials and violates one or more zoning by-laws. He says otherwise, and threatens legal action.

In litigious America that might seem a normal way of addressing a grievance, but most people in such a situation would simply clean their yard to avoid the expense and hassle. Granted, there are other properties in town that deserve official attention, and they'd better receive it or official credibility suffers. But Camara's legal threat casts a pall over everything he says and does. How can he claim to be working in the town's best interests while threatening the town treasury with millions of dollars in damages?

Now enter Jeanne Camara, his wife.

Mrs. Camara has initiated a list of complaints against neighbor George Frotton, the lastest salvo in a long feud. She says the town must handle her complaints independent of the town's complaints about her "husband's property" at 5 Washington Street (her home, too) which is impossible. Because of her husband's lawsuit threat, anything carrying the Camara name is too hot to handle for town employees. She states, and rightly so, that by-laws should apply to everybody equally, but this is a special case.

Town officials named as defendants in Camara's legal threat are legally handcuffed, so Tewksbury had to look elsewhere for help on the Camara case, no matter which side has more legal merit.

The town manager, acting on orders of the selectmen, hired an outside attorney and building inspector for all things related to the Camara issue, and now Mrs. Camara wants Dave Cressman fired for following his bosses' orders, which is unfair. Among her other accusations she says Cressman did not have town meeting approval to hire an attorney and building inspector, but nothing was heard from concerned citizens when Cressman hired an attorney and stenographer for the appeals dismissal hearings. How interesting.

Calling for the town manager's firing, from this writer's point of view, is an unreasonable demand by Mrs. Camara. Any blame for outside hiring falls upon the selectmen, who voted for it. Selectmen have taken no action on her request for Cressman's firing, and the town is well served by their inaction.

I've never had any trouble talking with Tom or Jeanne Camara. Despite rumors to the contrary, they are not insane or wild-eyed, and some of their complaints are unquestionably valid. Let them keep on complaining, because dissent keeps governments honest.

From my vantage point, Dave Cressman has been and is an asset to Tewksbury, and voters should realize it. He avoids politics in his job, which is quite a task in a town where bean-ball is the game of choice, and he's a superb number-cruncher. Would Tewksbury have endured these difficult times better under the former system of budget preparation? Hardly. Taxpayers should also be thankful that Cressman's contract doesn't include pay for his overtime.

Yes, Dave Cressman and I belong to the same Rotary club. Yes, our wives share common hobbies and laments (such as husbands who work countless hours). Ethics keep me from letting interview subjects become friends, but I happen to like Dave Cressman. His sense of humor needs improvement, but that's a minor issue.

The voters will decide in April whether or not to support Jeanne Camara. Dave Cressman, however, deserves their support.

Living proof that when every second counts, you can count on us.

Heidi DiRienzo had just given birth to a healthy baby girl. Easily. And naturally. At a time of such happiness, what more could a woman need? A lot more, in Heidi's case. More doctors. More blood. More emergency care than anyone had anticipated as a postpartum hemorrhage suddenly changed a moment of joy to one of great risk. Fortunately, Heidi couldn't have been in better hands.

The New England Memorial obstetrical team is a finely-tuned group of specialists trained to handle complications with crucial speed, coordinating every move to assist and support one another. Together, they turned a life-threatening crisis around. The ample supply of blood and the presence of a full-time on-staff anesthesiologist were also vital factors in Heidi's swift stabilization.

Naturally, we wish you an easy, uncomplicated labor and hope the only aspects of our OB or midwifery programs you need to experience are our caring professionals and comforting setting - complete with warming lights and therapeutic whirlpool baths. It's reassuring to know, however, that when every second counts, you can count on us. And Heidi DiRienzo is living proof.

Over 50 crafters will be on hand including woodcrafts, glass engravings, personalized children's books and many, many more.

The junior class will offer gift wrap, the color guard will display its handmade pins and earrings, DECA will sponsor a white elephant table.

The public is cordially invited. All proceeds from space rentals will be used to provide scholarships for senior members of the Student Council.

Health forum November 26

Health care reform in the United States will be the subject of a forum sponsored by the Wilmington League of Women Voters on Tuesday, November 26 at 8 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend this forum which will be held at the Fourth of July building across from Wilmington common.

Since a study of health care in the U.S. was adopted at the League of Women Voters national convention in 1990, local leagues across the country have been examining the current status of health care in this country and evaluating public and private alternatives for the delivery and financing of health care.

In developing a LWV position on this subject, local leagues will be attempting to determine what the goals of a health care policy should be, whether or not a basic level of care should be provided to all citizens, if there should be an equitable distribution of services and how that could be achieved, what cost control methods should be adopted and what criteria should be utilized in allocating or "rationing" health care.

Since several places of legislation with health care reform are currently pending at both the state and federal levels, anyone who is interested in this timely and controversial subject is encouraged to attend the League's forum. For further details call 658-4394.

Registration open for modeling course

There is still time to sign up your son or daughter for the popular modeling and finishing program which is being offered jointly by the Wilmington Recreation Department and LaFemmina School of Modeling and Finishing.

The program is open to pre-teens and teenagers in grades six through 12. The program will begin January 8 and run for six weeks on Wednesdays from 2:30 to 3:30 for high schoolers and from 3:45 to 4:45 for middle school students.

The cost for the six hour course is $20, to be paid at the recreation office at town hall.

What a great Christmas gift for a youngster who has always wanted to learn the fundamentals of modeling. During the course, students will learn how to improve their appearance through proper dress, makeup, hair styling, and manners and will practice and video tape modeling techniques. Registration is open and will be on-going until both classes are full.

Chamber breakfast

The Wilmington Chamber of Commerce will hold a general membership breakfast at 8 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 26 at the Regional Health Center located at 500 Salem Street. Nancy Zare, M.S.W., an expert in the field of personnel management will speak on ways of coping and succeeding in dealing with difficult people.

Ms. Zare will illustrate the need for all of us to identify "difficult people," open up, and develop a wider repertoire of responses, thereby expanding our options and our successes in dealing with all the people in our daily lives.

Chamber members and guests are invited to attend. Breakfast cost is $5 members and $7 non-members. Reservations are required by November 21. Call 657-7211.

Benefit dance for burn victims

A dance will be held at the Tewksbury - Wilmington Lodge of Elks on South Street, Tewksbury on Fri., Nov. 29 to benefit the children burned recently in a fire in Dracut. The dance will feature two bands, Poor "N Reign and Ransom, along with DJ Johnny O. The dance will run from 7 p.m. to midnight. Tickets are $10. All proceeds go to the Nawn-Labrie Trust Fund.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending November 19, Wilmington police officers responded to 31 alarms, made nine arrests and five protective custody detentions, investigated three assaults and made 11 bank escorts.

Two burglaries were checked out along with five incidents of disorderly conduct, two domestic problems and eight larcenies. Two motor vehicles were reported stolen and three vehicles were recovered.

Medical assistance was carried out, two non criminal complaints were logged, 11 public services were performed and a restraining order was issued.

A threat complaint was logged, three traffic services were completed, eight traffic accidents were investigated, a trailbike complaint was taken, alert neighbors reported five incidents of suspicious activity and six cases of vandalism are still under investigation.

Arrests

Wednesday Officer Steve Mauriello arrested Richard Germain, 25 of Lawrence on the basis of a default warrant issued by Woburn District Court. Germain was bailed for a Friday court appearance.

While on patrol on Main Street early Thursday morning Officer Harold Hubby arrested Joseph Kelley, 22 of Karen Lee Lane, Tewksbury. Kelley was charged with operating after suspension of his license.

Later on Thursday, while on radar patrol on Main Street, Patrolman Joe Harris arrested Robert DePiano, 30 of Forest Street after a computer check revealed an outstanding traffic warrant. DePiano was taken to Woburn Court for arraignment.

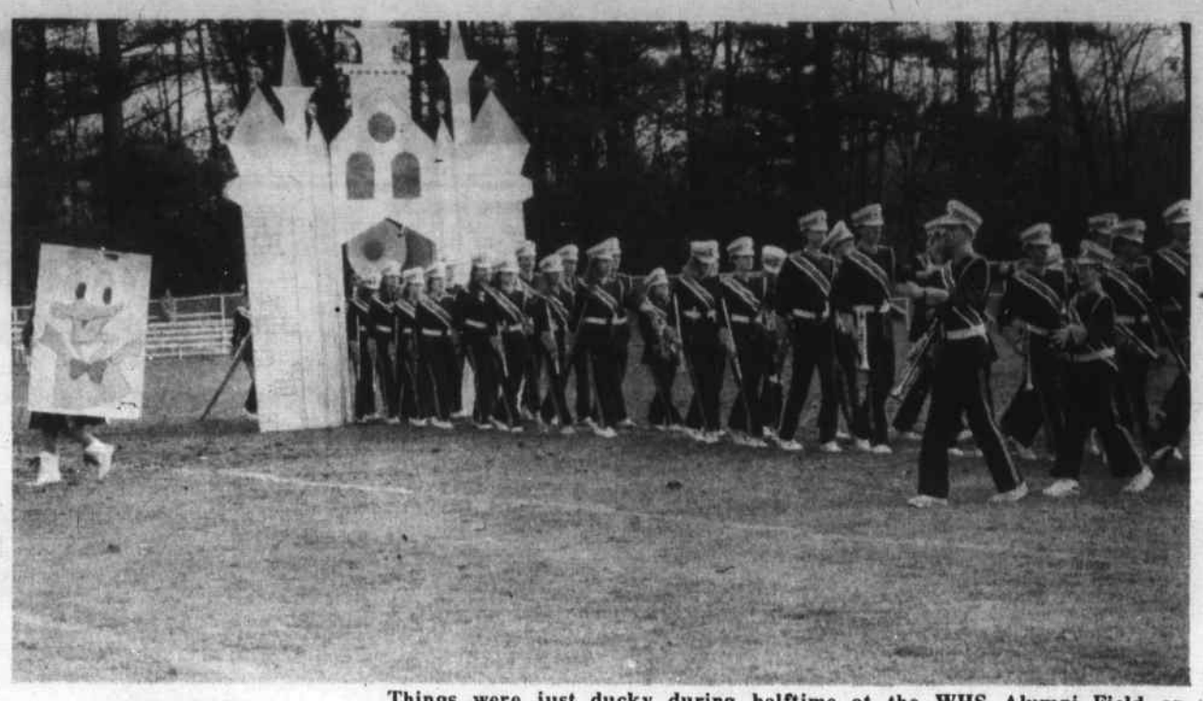

Just before midnight Tuesday Officer Steve Mauriello arrested a New Hampshire woman while on Route 93. Sherry A. Sniegoski, 46 of Auburn was charged with operating under the influence of liquor, failing to stay within marked lanes and refusing to stop on signal by a police officer. Sniegoski failed the breathalyzer test with a reading over .10. This will cause the court to suspend her right to operate in Massachusetts under the per law.

At 3 a.m. Sunday Officers Chip Bruce and Joe Desmond arrested two men on drug related charges. Karl Miller of Pleasant Road and Richard Nicholas, 25 of Longview Road, both of Wilmington were charged with possession of class B and D controlled substances. They were bailed for a Monday court appearance.

Sunday evening Officer Mike Begonis and matron Peggy Perry drove to Saugus to arrest Marlene Boudouris, 31 of Reading on the basis of a default warant issued by Woburn Court. She was held overnight to appear in Court Monday.

Patrolman John Bossi arrested Gary E. O'Brien, 29 of Reading Monday morning. Bossi was stopped on Middlesex Avenue and charged with operating after suspension of his drivers license. He was taken directly to Woburn court for arraignment.

A Lynn man was arrested Monday evening by Patrolman David Axelrod while he was on patrol on Andover Street. Sidney Davis, 28 was held on a Bedford police warrant. He was later released to Bedford officers.

Football Fantasyland

Things were just ducky during halftime at the WHS Alumni Field on Saturday afternoon as the Wildcat Marching Band paid tribute to Walt Disney. While the majorettes carried pictures of Donald, Mickey and other characters, the band came marching out of the Fantasyland castleplaying the Mickey Mouse Club theme song.

Wilmington senior topics

Nurse at the Center

The nurse will be at the Senior Center Thursday, Nov. 21 from 1 to 2:45 p.m. She will be checking blood pressures and giving diabetes tests. If you were not able due to illness to get a flu shot at any of the clinics the nurse held this month, call the center by Wednesday morning. I will ask her to bring an injection with her Thursday.

Whist November 25

The last whist of November will be held Monday, Nov. 25 in the function room of the Buzzell Senior Citizen Center starting at 1 p.m. Don't forget to take some 25 cent chances on winning $5. As the money derived from the chances is used as prizes for the games. But your 25 cent chance may be the winner of $5.

Christmas four weeks away

Christmas is a little more than four weeks away. The Fair Committee has a large number of excellent gifts for sale to make your Christmas shopping easy for you. Drop in and look them over. They hope to empty the shelves before Christmas. These shelves will be needed as they prepare for next year's fair. The committee will be in the craft room to help you every Wednesday morning from nine to noon with your shopping.

Therapeutic social

The Christmas therapeutic social will be held in the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks Hall Friday evening December 20. A turkey dinner with all the trimmings will be served at 7 p.m. Music for dinner and dancing will be provided by the Big Band Sounds of Roger Dame. Signup for this social will begin at 9:30 a.m. Friday, November 22. At that time you will be asked for a $4 non-refundable deposit to help defray the cost of the social. At that time you will also be assigned the number of the table you will be seated at. Please do not ask us to sign up seniors from other towns. And do not give your seat to another. I will set a cutoff number, at that time a waiting list will be started. That list will be filled with cancellations starting from the top of the list down.

The $4 you are paying is only a stipend toward the complete cost of the evening. The major part is paid through the Department of Elder Services budget from the town.

Dinner to be delivered

A holiday catered dinner will be delivered to shutin seniors confined to their homes during the holiday season due to illness, disability or advanced age on Thursday Dec. 5. If you or any senior you know is in this category call the Center. I may already have you on my list. If not it will be added. I will be calling those I know who will qualify for a dinner a few days before the delivery.

Elder Services Commission

The televised Elder Services Commissioners monthly meeting will be held Tuesday evening November 26 at 7 in room 9 in the town hall. This is an open meeting to any person young or old who wishes to attend. If a senior would like some input it is at this meeting to do so.

Thanksgiving

Next Thursday we celebrate Thanksgiving. We all have read in newspapers and listened to radio and television reports on the large number of people who have lost jobs through the declining economy. That means a Thanksgiving dinner celebration for many in Wilmington will be pushed aside for other priorities. I have been told if you or anyone you know will be in need of a dinner almost every church and club in the town will be sending dinners to those in need. God knows it is no crime to ask for help when we need it. As He knows we all should give when we know someone else may need our help. Let us all look around our area and if we know of an older person living alone or a young family who needs someone who cares, share Thanksgiving with them, or call one of the churches or clubs who will get a Thanksgiving dinner to them.

Vial of Life

One of the important programs I have implemented for the seniors is the Vial of Life Program. This is a program that can save your life. What it entails is completing a form containing pertinent information for your treatment if due to a fall, heart attack, stroke or auto accident you are not coherent enough to answer questions such as, your name, address, telephone number, person to contact when needed, doctor, his telephone number, religion, insurances, medical problems, medications, dosages and pharmacy purchased.

This form will be given in triplicate, one to be placed in your refrigerator, one to be put in your wallet or purse, and one to be returned to the office. This program over the years has saved the life of many of our seniors. Even if you had made a form out before, I would like every senior to enroll in this program again, some of the forms are every old. It is very important to me to know all of us have written down every bit of information while we are able to. To get a form come to the center or call me I will be happy to send you one.

Octocom will move to Chelmsford

Growth in a Wilmington-based business is causing it to leave Wilmington and move to Chelmsford.

Octocom Systems, Inc. will move to its new location at One Executive Drive in Chelmsford on Dec. 2. The building was previously occupied by Wang Laboratories.

Since Octocom's inception in 1984, the company's corporate headquarters have been located in Wilmington at 255 Ballardvale St. Additional space, in a separate facility (300 Ballardvale), was acquired two years ago to accommodate the fast-growing company.

Ian Davison, Octocom's Chairman and CEO, is confident that the move will be a benefit to the daily activity of the company. "The consolidation of our two buildings will not only improve communications, but it will also provide the company with a highly efficient use of space," said Davison.

Cushman & Wakefield, a Boston based real estate broker, assisted Octocom in this transaction. The company currently occupies 50,000 square feet. The new location consists of 110,000 available square feet, and Octocom will initially be utilizing 81,000 square feet with an option to lease the remaining space.

Founded in 1984, Octocom Systems, Inc. is a global leader in the design manufacture and support of its high quality, flexible networking solutions that are standards compliant in more than 60 countries worldwide. Octocom's line of innovative products include modems, network management systems, digital access products and secure communications products, which are designed to readily adapt to the different application requirements, telecommunications services and regulatory environments found around the world. Committed to maximizing customer satisfaction, Octocom offers around the world, around the clock support to its growing customer base. Based in Massachusetts, Octocom is a privately held company with a wholly owned subsidiary in the United Kingdom, additional offices in Europe and throughout the United States, and distributors worldwide.

Tewksbury Youth Football

Two titles for Redmen

Tewksbury A'22
Worcester A 8

The Tewksbury Redmen A' Youth Football squad completed an undefeated (8-0) season by dominating the previously undefeated Worcester Vikings to capture the Mass. Youth Football Assocation title.

It appeared that the Redmen were going have a very tough time in Worcester as their first three offensive possessions failed to gain any significant yardage.

As is the case with championship teams when the offense stumbles, the defense, led by the aggressive play of Ryan Minior, Alex Adorno, Joe Mercer and keyed by interceptions by Kevin Schmidt and Mik Hooley, stepped to the forefront to completely stifle the Viking offense.

The Redmen finally got on the board in the second quarter, as QB Mike Torode scored on a gutsy 76 yard keeper on a crucial fourth and 14 play deep in their own territory.

The Redmen then added the two point conversion on a pass from Torode to Joe Mercer behind the Viking defense.

Following the half Tewksbury struck again on another QB keeper by Torode behind the excellent blocking of Matt Murray, Jason Frasca and Ryan Cronin from the Worcester 45. The conversion failed.

Midway through the fourth quarter lightning struck a third time, as Torode once again broke through an overextended defense for his third TD, as the day was a bad dream series of instant replays for the Vikings, as Torode once again found Mercer in the end zone for the conversion.

Late in the game the Vikings, who were aided by several penalties, found the endzone for a TD and a conversion.

The Redmen special teams, led by Mike Wilson, Aaron Silva and Mike Bastolla, played well in containing a speedy Viking unit.

Tewksbury B' 26
Wayland 6

The Tewksbury Redmen Jr. Midgets (7-0) completed the Redmen sweep of the MYFA in dominant style as they buried the always tough Wayland Warriors at Wayland.

The Redmen struck quickly as Jim Callanan swept left end for a 22 yard TD. The conversion failed.

Wayland struck back as they scored on 55 yard fake punt. This TD would represent the scoring for the Warriors, as the Redmen defense, led by pass interceptions by Justin Butler and Jay McLafferty and the fine defensive play of Derek Power, Jim Catanzaro, Joshua Elliot and Mike Bernard, would shutdown the Wayland offense.

The Redmen offense was not to be outdone by the defense and added a 45 yard touchdown run by Matt Petros to end the first quarter and had Callanan blast off left tackle by a 30 yard TD early in the second stanza.

The Redmen then closed out the half and the scoring with a 45 yard dive off right tackle by Josh Elliot behind key blocks by Josh Meuse, Chris Zullo and Chris Barrasso.

The second half was dominated by the Redmen on both sides of the line of scrimmage as the Redmen moved the ball behind the running of Mark Garabedian and the control passing game of QB Petros to receivers Mark Bradley, David Mills and Mike Bernard.

Navajo 13 Sioux 3

The Navajo (7-1) captured their second consecutive championship as they defeated the Sioux (5-2-1) in the annual Tewksbury In-Town Youth Football Championshp Game.

The Sioux clearly outplayed the Navajo in the first half as their ball control offense led by the running of QB Paul Davoren, FB Jim Goglia and HB Roger Brasil kept the dangerous Navajo offense off the field.

The Navajo offense was allowed a total of three offensive plays in the first half, as the defense led by Shaun Cedorchuck, Mike Saber, Kevin Marianelli and keyed by an interception by Kevin Murray stopped the Navajo's only first half offense.

Unfortunately for the Sioux, the ever opportunistic Navajo managed to score first as Bill Mackey intercepted a Sioux pass and returned it for a 65 yard touchdown. Anthony D'Angelo then converted the extra point on an off tackle dive.

The Navajo led off the second half with an impressive drive behind the excellent running of D'Angelo and fine blocking by Bill Cornell, Ward Thompson and Tony Rocco. D'Angelo then capped off the drive by streaking in from the 14 yard line for the touchdown. The conversion then failed.

The Sioux attempted to strike back, but as in the first half the bend but don't break defense of the Navajo led by Tony Ganchi, Ralph Perrotti, Jim Burke and Ryan Stanton shutdown the Sioux 'normally potent air attack.

Special teams on both the Sioux, led by Mark Stokowski, Jard Sharifi, Walter Evans and Jack Byrne and the Navajo, led by Mike Ganchi, Pat Kiely, Mark Hamond and Tyler Welch, played well.

Pressure on the punter

Wilmington High School players Gary Danehy (7), Eric Robbins (67) and John Burke (76) put some pressure on the Lowell High School punter in Saturday's 35-14 defeat at Alumni Field. It was the seventh straight loss for the Wildcats as they prepare to play at Tewksbury Thanksgiving morning.

Won't quit

Wilmington High School linebacker Mike Doucette (59) doesn't quit on this play as he dives at a Lowell High School running back Saturday.

Main man

It often took two and three Lowell High School defenders to stop Wilmington's Bob Fleming Saturday. Fleming was the only WHS' running back to carry the football during the first half of Saturday's 35-14 loss to Lowell. Bob scored a touchdown and gained 77 yards for the Wildcats. In other MVC action Saturday Tewksbury's Ryan McNeal scored two touchdowns and ran for 214 yards as the Redmen held off a late Haverhill rally to win, 20-13. Senior quarterback Dana Boudreau had a big game rushing and passing for the Redmen and scored the game winning touchdown on a one yard run.

NFL picks by Mike Stuart

Buffalo adds to Patriots' tale

Buffalo 27 New England 10
When does a short story become a novel ? When the subject matter is the '91 Patriot season.

Washington 34 Dallas 3
After this one is over, Jimmy Johnson will have no one to blame but his coaching staff, which in his terms, means that they should be fired.

Chicago 24 Miami 13
Just a little revenge for the 86' team that suffered it's only loss to the Dolphins.

Cincinnati 16 LA Raiders 13
I continue to be hot on the upset picks, and feel confident on this call.

Houston 23 Pittsburgh 16
Years ago, the Oilers never had a chance in the Steel City. Nowadays, the only obstacle on the road is playing on grass. (Both losses on grass, N.E. and Washington).

New Orleans 17 Atlanta 14
As much as I want to take the Falcons, I can't do it with the game on national TV.

Green Bay 10 Indianapolis 6
When the gusty winds roar through Lambeau Field, they won't remove the pourous odor that lingers on both sidelines.

Philadelphia 31 Phoenix 17
If Stan Gelbaugh had notions of returning to the WFAL last week, wait 'til the Eagles front four give him a suggestion or eight.

Detroit 24 Minnesota 21
It would be nice if the Pats can pick up some dry laundry when the Vikings clean house after this campaign. Also, my prayers go out to Lions lineman Mike Utley.

LA Rams 20 San Francisco 17
Unfortunately for Bay area fans, Bono to Cher had better success.

Seattle 30 Denver 24
These games are usually close, but the deciding factor becomes decibels. And since Boeing is in the area, I give the not to the Seahawks.

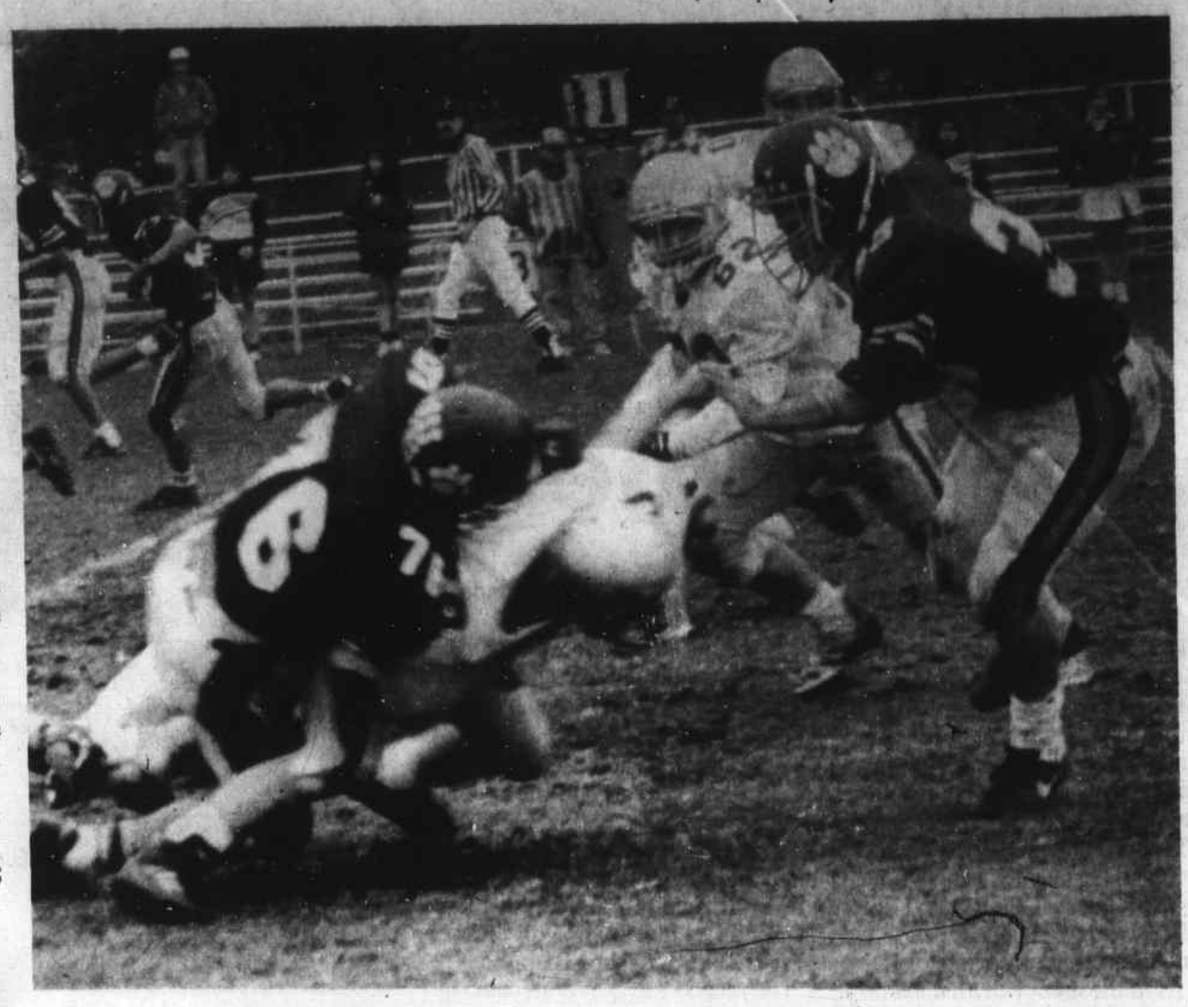

NY Giants 26 Tampa Bay 10
The Giants are more concerned this week with finishing the tour of Busch Gardens that Parcells wouldn't let complete last year.

NY Jets 24 San Diego 19
Two promising teams of the near future will hook up in the Meadowlands. The Jets are a little more promising today than the Chargers.

Kansas City 16 Cleveland 10
The last meeting ended in a 10-10 tie. This year the Chiefs end a tie with a fumble recovery by you know who, Derrick Thomas.

Last week outright: 10-4; season: 108-47

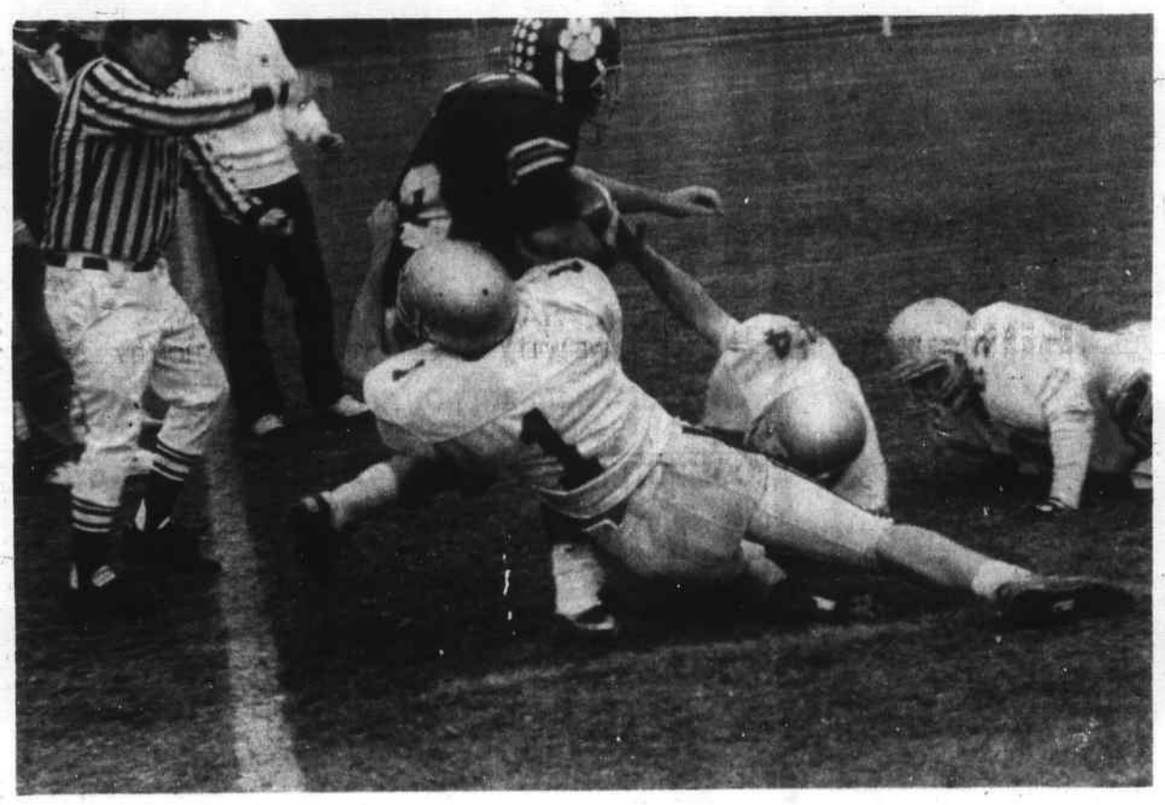

Last week vs spread: 7-7; season: 93-60-2.

Double team Wildcat defenders John Burke (76) and Bob Fleming (33) team up to tackle this Lowell runner in MVC football action Saturday afternoon. The Wildcats were defeated, 35-14.

Tough inside Wilmington High School running back Bob Fleming is mauled by the Lowell defense as mates Bryant Falzone (30) and Tom Killilea (25) move in to help out on the play.

WHS workhorse Wildcat senior running back Bob Fleming was a workhorse for his team Saturday against Lowell. Here the Lowell defense swarms Fleming along the Wilmington sideline.

MV swimming

Strong start for Pirate swimmers

The Merrimack Valley Pirates swim team began the 1991-92 season last weekend at the Barracuda Meet in Wellesley.

Five Pirates, Ellen Donahue, Nicole Hendrickson, Diana Liberty, Jessica Schoen and Eric Williams, won events as the Pirates finished strong in the meet.

Donahue, swimming in the eight and under class, won the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events and the 25 and 50 yard butterflys and was second in the 25 free.

Hendrickson captured the 50 yard backstroke and 100 yard individual medley while placing third in the 50 fly and 25 back, fourth in the 25 and 50 yard breaststrokes, 50 and 100 freestyles and 25 fly and fifth in the 25 yard butterfly.

Connie Brown was second in the 50 free, third in the 50 back, fifth in the 100 free, seventh in the 25 back and eighth in the 25 free and 100 I.M, while teammate Michelle Riley placed in four events, scoring a third in the 100 free, fifth in the 50 free and a pair of eighths in the 25 free and 50 back.

Scoring for the eight and under boys, Jonathan Leone was second in the 25 fly, 100 I.M. and 100 free, third in the 25 back and 50 free, fourth in the 25 free and 50 back, fifth in the 50 yard, breaststroke and eighth in the 25 yard breaststroke.

Michael Richard was seventh in the 50 fly for the Pirate eight and unders.

Jessica Schoen paced the MVP 9-10 age group with a win in the 200 yard freestyle, fourth in the 100 free and seventh in the 100 yard breaststroke. Teammate Jamie Viglione was fourth in the 50 free, sixth in the 50 back and eighth in the 100 fly.

Scarlette Quigley placed sixth in the 100 yard backstroke.

Adam Kovach was seventh in the 100 fly and eighth in the 200 free, while Richard Kinnett was sixth in the 50 and 100 freestyles and seventh in the 50 yard breaststroke.

Danielle Muraca was sixth in the 200 free and eighth in the 100 back, while Keith Grant placed seventh in the 100 yard breaststroke.

In the 13-14 age group Diana Liberty won the 200 free and 200 fly events, was fourth in the 100 free and 200 back, fifth in the 200 I.M., sixth in the 100 fly and seventh in the 50 free and 100 back.

Teammate Heather Wilder placed sixth in the 50 and 200 free, seventh in the 290 fly and eighth in the 100 free and fly, while Clewis Kinnett was fourth in the 100 yard breaststroke.

Williams scored an impressive come from behind win to take the 200 yard breaststroke. He also placed second in the 100 yard breaststroke, third in the 200 M.I., fourth in the 100 and 200 backstrokes and fifth in the 200 free and 200 fly.

Adam Schoen was third in the 50 and 200 freestyles, fifth in the 100 free and 200 I.M., sixth in the 100 back and 200 fly.

John Newland was fourth in the 200 back and sixth in the 50 and 200 yard freestyles, while Scott Campbell was seventh and David Howe eighth in the 200 fly.

In the open division, Laurie Woefel was second in the 100 and 200 yard breaststroke events and seventh in the 100 free, while Melissa Schofield placed second in the 200 yard backstroke and eighth in the 100 free and 200 yard breaststroke.

Wendy Mooney finished fourth in the 200 fly and eighth in the 200 free, while Barbara Hickey was sixth in the 200 free and seventh in the 100 fly.

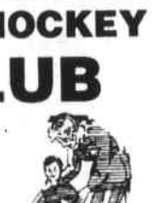

Matt Liberty placed fourth in the 200 fly, fifth in the 200 back, sixth in the 200 breaststroke and 200 I.M., seventh in the 100 fly and 200 free and eighth in the 200 yard breaststroke.

Garett Burke was second in the 100 free, third in the 50 free, fifth in the 100 back and fly and eighth in the 200 fly. Teammate Reed Newland was fourth in the 200 free and fifth in the 100 free and 200 fly, while Matt Jennings was eighth in the 200 back.

The Pirates are preparing for their specialty meet on Nov. 23 and 24 at the Greater Lawence Technical School pool. Teams from throughout New England will be participating and the public is invited.

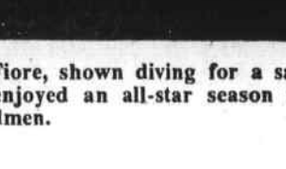

Super season Tewksbury goalie Nik Fiore, shown diving for a save in MVC soccer action, enjoyed an all-star season for coach Steve Levine's Redmen.

A host of hunting smells

by Bill Conlon

You stink. Nothing personal, but you really do reek, pal.

Maybe you can't smell it, but deer certainly can. You smell of coffee, gasoline, cigarettes (whether or not you smoke), deodorant, shampoo, soap, shaving cream, cologne and a dozen different foods, just to name a few. And if that isn't enough, you smell like a homo sapien, too.

We smell like humans. Sorry.

Smells come in varying levels. A hint of lilacs on the spring breeze is mild, while a bloated cow carcass is a "loud" smell. If you have to stink, be subtle, delicate, quiet. When the lord of the bucks moves downwind to catch your scent, don't yell.

Hunters should use an unscented soap (if any) and leave outer clothes outside at night. Yes, your woolen pants may be frosty by morning, but they'll be nearly odor free. The clothes will warm up after you put 'em on, so act manly about it.

No deodorants, no aftershave and no scented anything, naturally. The only thing more you can do to cut down on inherent human smell is to skip the beans, and don't eat meat for two weeks prior to deer season.

I've yet to read any books about it, but a theory is afoot that humans smell like carnivores, which is bad news for herbivores like deer. The theory is an offshoot of research we did during Vietnam, in which we tried to chemically detect the bad guys by the food he ate. Hmmm.

As for smoking in the woods, you must be crazy to even think it. Why not use loudspeakers and flares too?

With our inherent odors cut back, we can now enjoy the amazing host of hunting smells on the market.

There are three basic scents that hunters use: Buck attractors, buck infuriators and cover scents.

Cover scents, as the name implies, are smells used to cover the smell of humanity. Milder examples are acorn juice, apple essence and earth smell, although I'm at a loss to see how they get the smell of raw dirt in a bottle. We'll get to the LOUD cover scents in a minute.

Cover scents should be used when you're sitting and trying not to be noticed. But logic is needed. Don't use an apple smell, for example, if there are no apple trees. That's like using smoke flavored scent. Dumb.

Scatter a few drops of the cover scent around your stand, or store it in a plastic film canister and open the top when you need it. A cloth wick in the bottle is helpful.

More ... um ... amusing cover scents include skunk musk and fox urine, among others.

My uncle had a bottle of fox stuff at camp once, and curiosity got the better of me. I'd heard of fox stuff, but I'd never had a whiff. Silly Bill forgot high school chemistry class and how to carefully test for smell. Damn near passed out. Vile stuff!

A few drops of fox is plenty, as you don't want to smell like a town outhouse in Foxville. Go easy, and think of how big a fox is when you use it. Drops, not quarts.

The other two scents mentioned, attractors and infuriators, affect the deer directly, with hormones.

Buck attractor is doe scent, made from the urine of a doe in estrus. A sniff of receptive doe drives a buck crazy, but think before using it.

You want the buck to be attracted, but you don't want him directing his attention right at you. (Don't be dirty-minded, okay?) If a buck is looking for a doe, he approaches on full alert, eyes and ears wide open. If the doe scent comes from your location, he'll be staring right at you, making it almost impossible to lift a gun, camera or bow. Leave the scent a few yards away.

Sprinkle a few drops, to create a good "plume" of smell downwind, and pay attention to wind direction. He may approach from downwind, so try to place him 20 or so yards to one side for a clear shot.

However, don't expect a buck to come roaring in just because there's a doe smell in the air. If his lordship knows there are no receptive does in his area, you won't fool him one bit.

Doe scent can be used to create a trail, giving the buck a scent trail to follow. A pad of doe scent on your boot will do the trick, but keep the pad moistened. The buck expects to follow a trail that gets stronger as he goes along, not weaker.

Buck infuriators, unlike the doe scents, are made from buck urine and tarsal gland secretions. Tarsal glands are the tufts of dark brown hair inside the knees of a buck, and the smell is nasty. These formulae make the buck think there's another buck muscling in on his turf, and he'll be quick to fix that situation. Deer can't really speak, but a lot can be said with smells.

Like a doe scent, place the buck infurator somewhere other than on your person. A buck charging in with combat in mind is looking for the least little disturbance, and you can't surprise him easily.

I'm not prepared to get into the finer points of using buck and doe smells to make your own "artificial scrape" on the ground, but there is a school of though regarding such. It's up to you.

Don't expect compliments from your hunting buddies if you walk in to camp smelling like a warm doe, or a fox in need of a diaper. The hunting scents aren't the top-selling aftershaves. And if your buddy is a card cheat, remember his truck and its upholstery, then add a skunk.

--- Tackle Box ---

One of Tewksbury's finest told me this week that a moose might be living in the Great Swamp. One of the town's more "reliable" citizens reported the critter, but there have been no other reports to date.

Speaking of moose, there was yet another moose incident in the Bay State, this time by the Ludlow exit on the Mass. Pike, on October 22.

Unlike the September 21 incident in Natick, this time the police were able to secure the area and clear out the rubberneckers, which the state biologists insisted upon before they would do a thing. After a few small adventures the moose was shot with a 10cc dart of immobilant, and just trotted off. A second 10cc dart was used, and the moose kept walking. A half-hour after the first dart, the moose finally dropped, but after 15 minutes of waiting it was still able to jump up when approached, then finally fell to the ground. A third dose was needed when the moose sat up while being driven down the interstate in a trailer. If the Natick moose was tranked like this one, it could have trampled the onlookers. State biologists would have been in real hot water then, more than they were for killing the critter.

Halftime stars One of the highlights of Saturday's football game with Lowell was the Walt Disney tribute by the Wilmington High School marching band at halftime.

Teen modeling/finishing

Here's an idea for a good Christmas gift. The Wilmington Recreation Department is offering a new and popular activity for grades six to 12. The program is called Modeling and Finishing. It is designed to improve one's appearance through proper dress, makeup, hair styling and manners. Students will practice and learn modeling techinques and take part in video taping sessions.

The Recreation Department in conjunction with LaFemmina School of Modeling and Finishing in Wilmington is offering this course for six weeks beginning in January.

The initial program would begin on January 8 and run for six weeks on Wednesdays from 2:30 to 3:30 for high schoolers from 3:45 to 4:45 for intermediate students. Cost is $20.00 for the six hour course.

Both girls and boys are urged to take advantage of this program. Registration is ongoing until the two classes are full. Call 658-4270 to register and for more information.

Entertainment '92 and Greater Boston '92

The Recreation Department is offering another way to save money. Entertainment '92 and Greater Boston '92 are two great ways to save money when dining out, theatre and many other leisure time activities.

Stop by and look at these books of money saving coupons Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Rec Office at Town Hall on Glen Road. These books make great Christmas presents.

Theatre discounts

The Wilmington Recreation Department has discounts for the Showcase Cinemas, good in Woburn, Lawrence and Revere and the General Cinemas, good in Burlington and Peabody. These make great stocking stuffers Call the Rec Office at 658-4270 for details.

Lifeguard training

The Greater Lowell Family YMCA will host an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Course beginning December 15.

Classes will meet Sundays and Thursdays for approximately four weeks. Registration will begin November 18 and run through December 2. The cost of the program is $75.00 which includes all text books.

Bruce Goodwin, YMCA aquatic director, says "many graduates of YMCA hosted training programs assume part time lifeguarding positions at the YMCA."

For more information, contact Bruce Goodwin at (508) 454-7825.

YMCA open house

On Sunday, November 17 the Greater Lowell Family YMCA will begin opening on Sunday afternoons for the winter months. The YMCA will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. every Sunday through April 12, 1992.

As part of a community outreach program, the YMCA will open it's facilities to the public on Sunday, November 17 and Sunday, November 24 for free tours and free guest passes.

Lance Granger, associate executive director, says "This is a great opportunity for families and individuals to experience our facilities. We are confident that the value of a YMCA memership will be realized once people get inside."

Guests at the YMCA will be entitled to full privileges for the day, including use of a six lane lap pool; men's and women's health centers with whirlpool, steam and sauna; nautilus and cardiovascular equipment; free weights, basketball, and a family swim from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

ARE YOU PROTECTED?
by Edward H. Wilkens
RECREATIONAL VEHICLE COVERAGE
QUESTION: I am planning to by a self-propelled camper. Will I need a special insurance policy for this type of vehicle?
ANSWER: Your best bet would be a special policy that insures against virtually any type of accidental loss, including collision and upset. In most cases, personal effects such as, camera, clothing and sporting goods would be covered also. Liability coverage is also a feature of this type of package policy.
Owners of truck campers should also consider this type of blanket R/V policy. The kind which slides onto the truck bed is only covered if specifically named in the original policy.

INSURANCE for R/V's can differ depending on the type of camper you own.

Mary Higgins

Mary (Simoes) Higgins, 73, died Wednesday, November 6, 1991 at a Lowell hospital following an extended illness. She was the wife of Benjamin J. Higgins.

Born in Cambridge, July 15, 1918, she was the daughter of the late Juan and Marion (Mello) Simoes and had lived in Tewksbury for the past 30 years.

She retired from Raytheon in 1980, having worked for 26 years in missile assembly in both the South Lowell and West Andover manufacturing divisions. She was a communicant of St. William's Church.

November is National Hospice Month

None of us likes to face death in the family, but, when you can provide loving care to your loved ones at home, it helps.

Tom was a 56 year old man who with the support of his wife battled cancer for seven years. This past summer Tom deteriorated, lost strength and his ability to do simple tasks. Despite his long illness he thoroughly enjoyed seeing his children grow into adults and start their careers. Between all family members someone was with him 24 hours per day. Gradually with the support, patience and understanding of Visiting Nurse Hospice, he was able to come to terms with the reality of his situation. All services were used to the maximum during his final months to help this family cope with the pain and crisis. Everyone involved hoped for a miracle to happen, but it didn't. Tom died last month at home - with his family around him. He was comfortable. He died with dignity.

The month of November is National Hospice Month. It was proclaimed by an Act of Congress and the President. National Hospice Month provides the opportunity to focus national attention on the country's hospice caregivers. At Visiting Nurse Hospice, the professional care team includes: nurses, home health aides, nutritionists, social workers, therapists and a medical director.

Approximately 25 percent of the population does not know that hospice is a special kind of caring that respects a person's choice to receive comfort and support in the last stages (six months) of a terminal illness.

"Hospice care is an option everyone should be aware of especially if someone they know is terminally ill and wants to avoid prolonged hospitalization. We are here to help!" Natalie Parsons and Helen McCormack, coordinators of Visiting Nurse Hospice, said recently. "Here, each individual is assessed by the nursing staff and medical director to determine if and in what way Visiting Nurse Hospice can be of assistance. Hospice is an individual personal decision and it is not for everyone."

Help available to families through Visiting Nurse Hospice includes: 24 hour on call coverage, professional home health care, pain management and symptom control, emotional support, counseling, nutrition counseling, companionship, volunteer services, spiritual counseling, procurement of medical equipment, lab services, etc.

National Hospice Month certainly gives the public a good chance to learn about hospice care. People with questions about hospice, should call Visiting Nurse Hospice at (617) 438-3770 and speak to one of the coordinators. The Hospice brochure is always available to the public by either writing or phone requests.

Hospice volunteer opportunities exist with special training. On going supervision is provided. Call (617) 438-3770 for details.

Visiting Nurse Hospice is a 10 year old program of Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex East, based at 12 Beacon St., Stoneham. Visiting Nurse Hospice services 19 communities including Wilmington and Tewksbury.

Environmental form had 80 pages of reports, comments

by Capt. Larz Neilson

There was good news and bad, in an 80 page or so notification which was received in Wilmington last week pertaining to the proposed Northeast sewer. The net result will probably be a delay in the construction of the Northeast sewer for a year or more.

Important, in one sense, was the enclosure of an Environmental Notification Form (ENF) from the Massachusetts Office of Environmental Affairs. That letter was from Susan F. Tierney, secretary.

Many firms and officials received copies.

The town manager of Wilmington did not, nor did the Board of Water and Sewer Commissioners. They are now supplied, by means of getting copies from other recipients.

The Water and Sewer Commissioners have been working for several years on the project with competent engineers, and with other persons in an advisory capacity. It is now possible they have several more years of work before them before construction of the sewer can be started.

Early in the discussions received was the problem of trichloroethylene (TCE) contamination of the Stickney Well in North Reading. Readers of the Town Crier will recall that the TCE came from the former General Electric plant on the North Reading line. Although the plant has been sold to Ametek, GE is required to pay for a new sewage treatment plant for the building. Faced with a bill of $1.25 million for that new plant, GE is willing to pay $1 million toward the construction of the sewer main. The one fly in the ointment is that there is a deadline for the construction of the sewage treatment plant.

The big problem in this instance is that North Reading is not a part of the MWRA. Many governmental approvals will be required, approvals which probably will take more than a year to acquire.

John Felix, a MEPA Review Coordinator is on record as "we should strongly support." Later he comments on a discussion with Regional Director Bill Gaughan and Steve Johnson, both of whom, he reports "strongly" support the project and would like to see it completed as soon as possible --- "environmental damage will continue to be occurring on the site until the sewer extension is completed."

A letter signed by Susan Norton of the MWRA Planning Program advises that the "proponent" (Wilmington Sewer Commissioners), must "address down stream impacts to the Authority's (sewer) system and should address mitigation measures to eliminate any downstream adverse impacts."

That project is a subject which the sewer commissioners have been discussing for several months, with engineers and others.

Susan Tierney discusses wetland problems, including 5,400 square feet of land under water, and the drinking water supply by the Ipswich River for several towns, downstream. That, she states, is "categorically included among the projects for which Environmental Impact Reports are required. She goes on to discuss the problems in a lengthy paragraph, and then states:

"I find that neither the evaluation of the wetlands impact nor the discussion of mitigation are complete. No habitat analysis of the 3,000 feet of bank to be altered has been presented. Few details for wetland revegetation and wetland replication are given. I find that all lands subject to Article 97 of the state Constitution have been identified. I find that no plans have been presented to remove and dispose of hazardous waste contaminated soils. I agree with the MWRA that no analysis of potential capacity problems in the MWRA system below the project has been made. The proponent has left far too many environmental decisions to the responsibility of the contractor."

"It is my judgment that the waiver request does not have merit, fails to meet the tests established - I deny the waiver and require the preparation of the mandated EIR."

Another letter from John Felix advises that the "proponent (sewer commissioners should be advised that the department has experienced major problems in the past with construction projects) and then goes on to discuss one site along the proposed route which has been contaminated with copper."

A letter from the Executive Office of Transportation and Construction comments favorably on the plan to install a 7,690 feet length of sewer main along the railroad track in North Wilmington, and "is pleased that the proponent has worked with the MBTA to ensure that the integrity of the future second track is not precluded."

A letter from the Massachusetts Historical Commission was addressed directly to Chairman Arthur Smith, signed by Constance A. Cosby. It has been determined, she said that "this project is unlikely to affect significant historic or archaeological resources.

Dennis P. Poltrino, chairman of the Wilmington Conservation Commission: "For the record, I want to state that I am unabashedly in favor of and wholly support this sewer extension project. It is my opinion that any time contaminants are removed from the ground, in this case numerous individual septic systems and placed into a regional effluent treatment system the community is not only improved but is benefited. To further compound this benefit is the fact that Wilmington derives its drinking water from its own town wells. To rid the community of a potential source of contamination, through continued use of septic systems, some of which may be outdated and failing further contributes to the maintenance and support of our drinking water supply."

"- - the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commission is the entity that will supervise the installation of the sewer line - the Commission has a vested interest in protecting the affected wetlands during the installation of the sewer project. Moreover the Conservation Commission issued an order of conditions to the Water & Sewer Commission which, in my opinion more than adequately protects the town's wetlands. Just as important, the Water and Sewer Commission has one of the country's most respected and environmentally committed professional engineering firms, Fay, Spofford and Thorndike, Inc. (FS&T). This firm will be working closely for and with the Water and Sewer Commission during the entire project."

"Personally and professionally I have great respect for FS&T and I believe their involvement is a valued asset to the Town of Wilmington, which should be utilized to the furthest extent possible."

There was also a final letter from Thomas D. Jenkins, an engineer from Fay, Spofford & Thorndike, commenting on sewer planning. Mr. Jenkins hopes to commence construction in the spring, and he warns that if an EIR is to be required in all likelihood the 1992 season will be lost, as well as the $1 million donation from GE.

"We contend that the granting of a waiver to prepare an EIR will bring about environmental benefits in excess of those that could be achieved in the absence of a waiver. This is particularly evident, given the coordination among the Board of Water and Sewer Commissioners, the Conservation Commission and the design team, which led to the issuance of a final, uncontested Order of Conditions pertaining to the route as proposed.

In addition, at the 1991 spring Town Meeting, authorization to appropriate funding for the project was approved, based on the route of the project, which was graphically published in the local newspaper. Slight changes to the advertised route have been made to accommodate the concerns, of local residents, and the Conservation Commission."

Seventeen letters in the file were from local residents. Robert Cronan and Iva Rideout of the Park Street Association sent three. Conrad Gerhartz of Andover Street mailed four. Hydrologist George Lingenfelter of Concord Street mailed two. There was one each from Park Street residents Freda Graham Rogers, Alan R. Rowe, Robert and Olga Dorval, Marie J. Perotti and George and Norma Franco.

Paul and Janis Mangino of West Street and G.W. Rodan of Marcia Road each sent a letter.

Pediatric CPR courses Dec. 2, 17

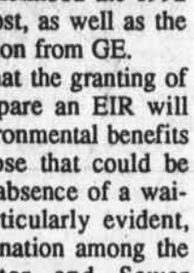

The national statistics on infant and childhood injuries are staggering. According to USA Today, choking and suffocating are the leading accidental killers of babies under the age of one. Appropriate pediatric and infant CPR techniques differ from those used on adults - knowing how to correctly use CPR can mean the difference between life and death.

Winchester Hospital will offer a pediatric and infant CPR non-certification course from 6 to 10 p.m. December 2 at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, a division of Winchester Hospital and from 6 to 10 p.m. December 17 at Winchester Hospital.

LIP SERVICE

When testing a lipstick's compatibility with skin, eye and hair color, use the inside of the wrist as a test site. Wait 10 minutes after the application to allow the lipstick time to react chemically with the skin. Then, hold the wrist beside your smiling face in the mirror to see how the lipstick color blends with the teeth and skin. Lipsticks in the orange family are likely to emphasize teeth with a yellow cast, while lipsticks with a blue undertone will make grayish teeth seem dingier. If brilliant colored reds, oranges, or pinks are the lipstick colors of choice, be sure that your mouth and lower jaw are your best facial features. Bright lip color is likely to draw attention to these areas.

Belly dancing and more

Night School has changed

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

The "Three R's" - Reading, 'riting and "rithmetic have given way at local night schools to such subjects as dressing for success, proper job interview techniques and, in Woburn, one of the curriculum items takes its participants to the Middle Eastern culture of Belly Dancing.

The very thought of the course name evokes ideas of exotic intrigue. In fact it is taught by a person with the alluring name of Dunia (Arabic for the World).

It is not known exactly how the art form came by its Aglicized name. However, one theory is that it is a rough translation of the French danse du ventre or the Arabic baladi (country).

The real truth is that Dunia is a housewife and mother of four who resides in Reading and goes by her real name, Diana Webber.

Dunia, or Webber describes the course as a fun filled activity that "is good for self-esteem and fluidity."

She added that newcomers come for fun and exercise and many of her students end up returning year after year.

Webber said that one student travels from Tyngsboro on a weekly basis to take her class and has been doing so for 10-years. Another student has been coming from Lynn for the past six or seven years.

Webber said that the class is the only exercise that many of these students get.

"It is an aerobic style of dancing," she said. "It can definitely get the heart rate up."

Webber explained that unlike aerobics you can work around infirmities.

"It is a wonderful movement type of class. It can be done very slow or very fast, she added.

Webber notes that her eight week classes are made up of six to ten students that range in age from 20 years to 70 years of age.

"We have older women with arthritis as well as young girls taking the course," Webber said.

According to Webber, turning professional "takes several years of committed practice and classes."

Webber said that once she had made the decision to make a career of dancing, she started to practice at least an hour a day.

In her 12-years only one of Webber's students "Christina" of North Reading has turned professional.

Webber said that Christina found that she really liked the class and learned how to make costumes.

Form there she started to enter dance contests at the Middle East Restaurant in Cambridge.

Now Christina is doing "Belly-grams" for a living.

According to Webber, Belly Dancing reached a peak of interest about six to eight years ago.

However, she notes that Belly-grams are still a big business, which is both good and bad for the art form.

Webber said that some of the people performing, although a small percentage, do not have the proper training.

"That doesn't speak well for the others and makes it hard for the 90 percent that treat it as an art form," she added.

Webber also notes that the taped music is not as authentic as that played by the live bands in the clubs.

She explained that the music used in the dances came from over a half-dozen different countries and that there are different styles of dancing to each song.

Webber expressed her opinion that on the whole though the Belly-grams have been good. "It has broadened peoples horizons."

She added that a person seeing it done properly in a club just once might not get the full DUNIA in her costume and veils as she performs the Middle Eastern form of Belly Dancing. The costume is not quite as exotic when her alter ego Diana Webber, a Reading housewife and mother of four, teaches the course at the Woburn Adult Education program.

How quickly events turn.

Take last Sunday morning, for example. The sun was shining, for a change, and I had plans to drive to New Hampshire to have lunch with my mother. Because of a busy schedule. I don't get the chance to see my mother as often as I'd like, so on this Sunday morning I was particularly looking forward to our meeting.

When you least expect it, Murphy's Law has a way of ruining the best arranged plans. As I began to back out of my driveway I felt the annoying sensation of the front right end of my car thumping along the asphalt pavement.

There was no second guessing the problem: I had a flat tire, The first thing I did was run back into the house to phone my mother to let her know what had happened. She was disappointed, as I was, but we both agreed to re-schedule our luncheon till the following week.

Boston Ballet Nutcracker Ball on December 5th

The holiday season in New England will open on December 5 with The Nutcracker Ball ushering in the traditional yuletide festivities in the city. Starting at approximately 9:30 p.m., the Boston Ballet Volunteer Association will host this annual gala benefit, following the 7:30 p.m. opening night performance of The Nutcracker.

The ornate baroque lobby of The Wang Center will be splendidly decorated for this traditional holiday kick-off event. The Ed Peter's Copley Orchestra, an elegant light supper provided by the Tremont House, and a special young people's party featuring a stilt-walker, face painters, jugglers par excellence Dario and Co., and a disco especially for the teenage set are only a few of the plans for this special Nutcracker night

Tickets are $100 per person, $75 for children and include a ticket to the performance. Tickets for The Nutcracker Ball only are $70 each, $35 for children. The co-chairs of the event are Nancy Upper and John Beretta. For more information about the event, call Helen Bridge at (671) 695-6950, Ext. 234.

THE RUSSIAN CHAMBER CHORUS will appear in Winchester at the Town Hall on Sunday, November 24th at 4pm. The chorus will feature a "sampler" intended to acquaint the audience with Russian liturgical music.. The works of such musical greats as Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, and Chesnikov will be featured

Winchester concert series continues

The Russian Chamber Chorus, the second offering of the Winchester Concert Series' new season, will perform at Town Hall on November 24, at 4 p.m., presenting a program described by the Worcester Telegram & Gazette as "a travelogue via sound to 19th-century Russia."

Director Andrei Roudenko describes the concert program as a "sampler, intended to acquaint our listeners with a wide range of Russian liturgical music, with classical choral art songs, and with authentic folk music." It will feature works by Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, Chesnikov and folk music of Russia and the Ukraine.

The great depth, beauty and passion of Russian choral music - whose style and traditions place unique demands upon performers - will be delivered in authentic style by forces that are matched to its requirements. "The best Russian choruses are known for their robust delivery of a wide-ranging emotional palette, something that Roudenko's thirty singers ably demonstrated," noted North Shore Magazine's George Harper.

The Boston-based chorus has, at its core, members of the Russian community who have brought to Boston the authentic Russian choral traditional that survived their emigre trek through Europe during World War II. Established in 1984, the chorus has been featured on NPR's Morning Pro Music and has performed in Boston's First Night, Boston's International Cultural Festival, at Jordan Hall, Sanders Theater and other concert sites.

Advance tickets are available at Book Ends and La Patisserie. Tickets will be available at the door. For information or mail order forms, call (617) 721-2627.

READING - Of 44 towns serviced by Reading's plastics hauler, only Cambridge has recycled more plastic than Reading - and we are not talking credit cards or malls here.

Thanks go to Eagle Scout in the making Mike Shannon, parents George and Judy, and sister Heather. As part of his effort to become an Eagle Scout, Shannon organized a townwide plastics recycling project, spending 170 hours on the project and very successfully enlisting the support of family, Reading's Solid Waste Committee, the Rotary Club, and the Health Department.

The Reading Chamber of Commerce and Solid Waste Committee have named the Shannons 1991 Recyclers of the Year.

essence of what is being performed by the dancers.

"Seeing it just once, you wouldn't know it encompasses foods, swords and veils," Webber said, adding, "One Middle East troupe in Boston uses flaming candalabras as part of their routine."

She very seriously describes Middle Eastern Belly Dancing as an art form and notes that it has a long history stemming from the days of the Egyptian pharaohs.

Webber referred to a published article by Queens College (New York) Anthropology teacher Gloria Levitas who states, "...a few artifacts and the speculations of historians and anthropologists set the origins of the pelvic dance in religious rites associated with female gods and fertility."

As for Webber, her history with the dance goes back to the late 1970s and mid-1980's when she worked as a professional dancer. She went to teaching about 12-years ago.

"When you love the dance and love the music, it becomes an all encompassing broader entity," Webber said.

She explained that there was no desire to pursue the career on a large scale when she first took a course offered by the Eastern Middlesex YMCA in Reading.

From there Webber started taking from Dorothea in Wakefield. "She would put on hafli's (dance parties) and all the students would make costumes."

Webber explained, "The costumes and bands are what got me into it."

That is when she started her commitment. After Dorothea, Webber went on to study in Cambridge with Samia at the Odalisque Dance Studio.

She turned professional and started dancing at the Averof in Cambridge, where owner Raymond Bandar gave her the stage name of Dunia.

Webber attempts to incorporate the fun she has had with the dances in her classes.

She said that the class opens up with 10-minutes of warm-up before going on with 40-minutes of dance steps.

According to Webber, the 40-minute period includes working with veils and zills (brass finger cymbals) used by every dancer.

At the end of the class, Webber attempts to set aside 10-minutes for the students to learn the line dances performed in the various clubs.

She added that during the eight week period the students get together for an extra-curricular field trip to a club such as the Averof, Bishops, or the Athenium Corner.

"They get to participate in the line dances and see professional belly dancers perform," Webber said.

She added that unless a student really wants to get into the costumes, she provides all the veils and zills that are needed for the classes.

It takes about 2 1/2 yards of chiffon for the veils and practice zills for beginners cost about $8.

Roving from S-1

Now I had to deal with the flat tire. I don't think there is anything more annoying than contending with a flat tire when you're prepared for a terrific day. There was no way of escaping it: the tire had to be dealt with.

I had two options: try to change the flat, which would result in messing up my attire for the afternoon, thus making it difficult to go back out after the tire was fixed without first taking another shower and changing my clothes, or I could call a friend to come pick me up and then leave the tire for Peter, my mechanic. I decided to opt for the second choice, and to leave the tire for my mechanic to fix in the morning.

While I waited for Susan, my friend, to arrive, I continued to contemplate my flat tire. I was struck with another simple idea: when Susan arrived, I'd have her drive me to Ames, where I could buy a can of tire inflator. At least I'd be abe to drive the car to Peter's gas station, thus saving him the trouble of towing the car in the morning.

Susan arrived shortly, and we drove to Ames. I purchased two cans of the tire inflator, deciding to keep the extra one in the car, just in case I ever needed it down the road (no pun intended).

We got back to my house, and following the instructions to a tee, I attached the can to the stem of the flat tire. First, some thick, limpid fluid oozed down the stem, onto the hubcap, over the deflated tire and onto the driveway. I jiggled the can a bit, suddenly hearing the sound of the rest of the stuff being injected into the tire.

At first the tire didn't seem to budge. I'd never used a can of tire inflator before, so I wasn't sure what to expect. Soon, though, we began to see the tire slowly rise. It didn't inflate back to its normal size, however, it appeared to be high enough off the driveway to drive the car to the gas station.

When the muffled hissing noise from the can ceased, I attempted to unscrew the can from the stem. The can seemed to be turning, but the darn nozzle wasn't coming off the stem.

"I think this thing is just going around in circles," I said to Susan, who stood over me, watching intently as I tried to remove the can from the stem.

I looked closely at the stem as I tried to continue to unscrew it. "It's not coming off at all," I said. I was beginning to feel frustration creep over me. Then I realized what was wrong.

"I think the stuff that leaked out has hardened like a rock," I said. "This darn can isn't about to come off."

My frustration caused me to twist the can with force, then I tried tugging at it, but my efforts were all in vain. That can was going nowhere.

Suddenly, the can snapped off from the nozzle, which remained attached to the stem of the tire. I heard the sound of air hissing slowly from the hole in the nozzle.

"Shoot, Susan," I said, "now I'm losing the air that's inside the tire!"

The tire slowly sank back to the ground. I cussed as the tire finally flattened and the last hiss of air escaped.

"Well, I guess this wasn't such a good idea after all," I said.

"What about your spare!" Susan asked.

"You're not going to believe this," I replied, "but I've never had to change a flat with one of those silly-looking donut spares."

Susan said, "Well, it's worth the attempt now."

I agreed, since we were already caught up in trying to fix the flat. The heck with getting a little dirty, I decided.

I opened the trunk, only to discover a flat spare, also

"We can throw it in my car and take it to a gas station for some air," she said.

We drove to the self-serve station about a mile from my house. When we located the air pump on the side of the station we discovered something else: it now costs a quarter for air.

"I don't have a quarter on me," I told Susan, who immediately began to search through her pocketbook for some money. "In fact, I left my wallet on the kitchen table. I don't even have a bill on me."

"I'm sure I have some change," she said, continuing to rifle through her pocketbook.

Then she said, "I hate to say this, but I think I forgot to bring money along, too. I ran out of the house so fast, I forgot to grab some money. I never do that."

Keep looking," I said, adding, "You've got to have a quarter floating around in there someplace."

I noticed a middle-aged couple and two young children approaching us on foot from the convenient store next to the gas station. They were heading for the car parked right next to Susan's car. Impulsively, I said to the adults, "I know this sounds crazy, but do you have a quarter that I could borrow? I'd be happy to pay you back later."

Instinctively, the two children moved closer to their mother, while the father regarded me with odd curiosity. The oldest child, a little girl about seven years old, made a comment to her mother. I think they thought I was a panhandler, notwithstanding the fact that I was dressed pretty well to be a beggar. Or perhaps they thought I was simply missing a few nuts and bolts upstairs. In either case, I wasn't about to get a quarter from them.

"Look, I'll let you hold my watch until I come back with the quarter," I said. My frustration must've made me appeal a little too desperate. With that plea, the family of four got into their car, and with the father still regarding me with cautious curiosity, they started up and drove away.

Just then, Susan announced that she'd located a quarter at the bottom of her pocketbook Thank goodness, I thought, taking the coin through the open window and dropping it into the air pump. I attached the end of the hose to the stem of the donut spare and waited for the tire to inflate. Instead, all I heard was the sound of air rushing out of a massive leak at the bottom of the spare's stem. There was no way this donut was going to inflate.

I returned the hose to its cradle, slammed the trunk down over my donut spare, and got back into Susan's car. I slammed the door shut, and she knew instantly what was wrong.

"The spare's got a leak, too," I said, to which she replied, with a chuckle, "I don't mean to laugh, but it figured."

When we got back to my house, Susan piped up with another suggestion. "Why don't we try to pump up the spare with the other can of tire inflator? Maybe it would work well enough to get the car to the gas station.

Her suggestion was at least worth a try; after all, we'd tried everything else. I attacked the second can to the stem of the donut. A slow stream of air escaped from the crack at the bottom of the stem. I cussed, released the can from my hand and gave up.

Susan held the stem tightly to the tire. "Maybe the glue will harden enough for us to get the car to the gas station. Look at how it stuck to the other stem."

"Good idea," I agreed, as I removed the jack from the trunk of my car and went about raising the right front end of my car from the driveway. Susan continued to hold the stem, hoping the glue would harden in the meantime.

"I hate these stupid, little jacks," I said, adding, "I liked cars when they came with real jacks."

The car didn't seem to be rising fast enough, in spite of my repeatedly turning the small crank attached to the tiny jack.

We suddenly heard a creaking noise from beneath my car. Upon examination, we discovered what was wrong: the plastic beneath the bumper had begun to bend and crack under the pressure of the jack.

"I've got to position the jack back a little further," I said, starting to reverse by turning motions with the handle.

As the jack descended it slipped ever so slightly from its position on the hottop. I couldn't get it to go all the way down, at least low enough so that I could re-position it under the frame of the car.

"It's stuck, Susan!"

We both moaned. Then I said: "Now what am I going to do:" I knew then that I should have just left the car for Peter in the morning.

I got inside, started the car up and put it into reverse, to see if I could drive it off the tiny jack. No luck: all I succeeded in doing was scraping the jack along the hottop. The jack wasn't about to budge.

I climbed out of the car, stepped back a few feet to assess the situation. The plastic beneath the bumper remained crunched from the pressure of the poorly-positioned jack. I'd removed the hubcap, and it remained next to the front tire. The nozzle to the tire inflator can remained stuck to the flat tire's stem. And Susan remained bent over the donut, steadfastly holding the stem so that the air inside wouldn't escape. All in all, the scene was not pretty.

Finally, I announced, "The heck with it. I'm going to leave the whole mess for Peter in the morning. I've had it."

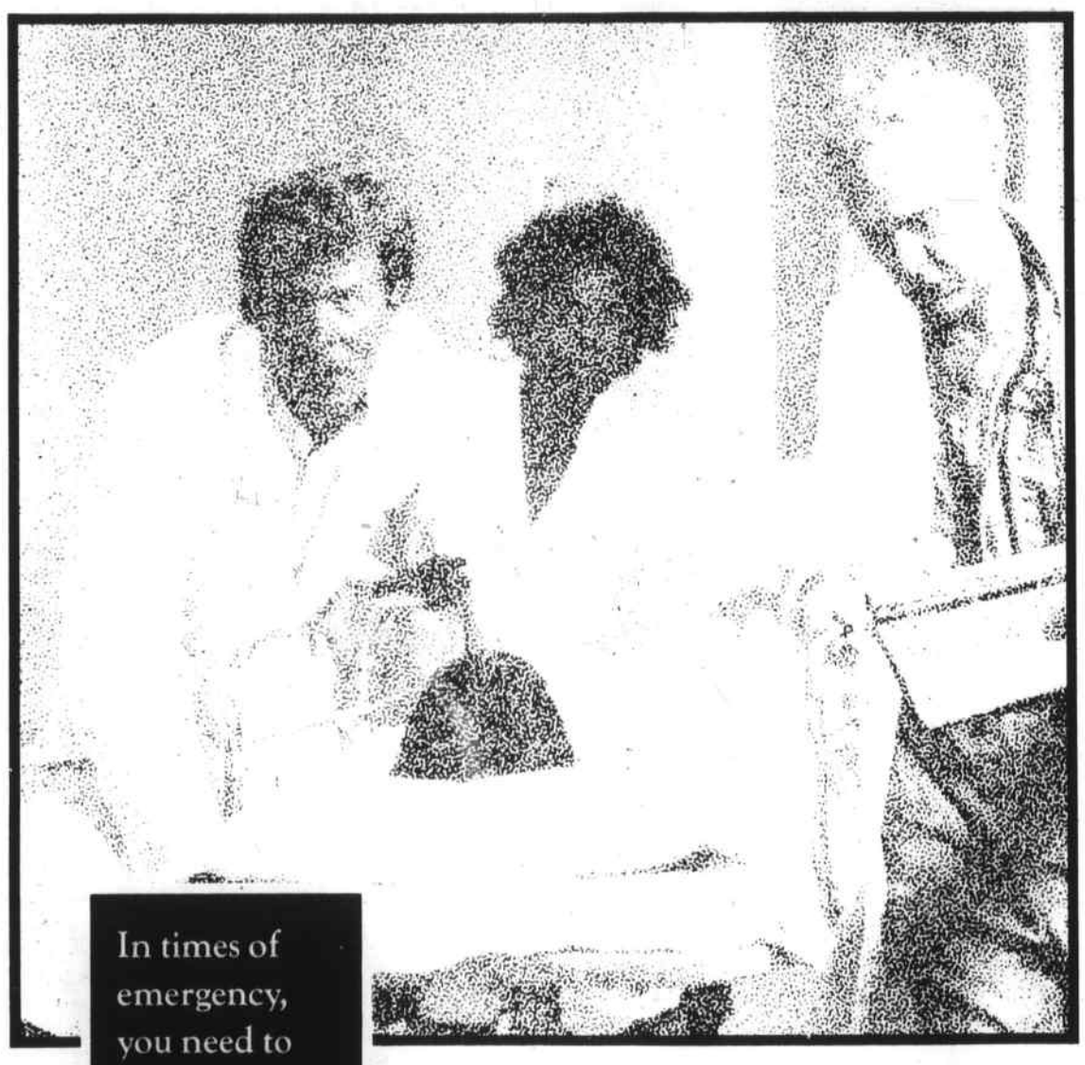

With that, Susan let go of the donut stem. Air slowly hissed out. We climbed inside her car, and headed for the nearest restaurant for something to eat.

As we drove away, I looked back at the sorry picture, and thought, Peter is going to get a big laugh out of this.

MUSIC THEATRE FOOD DRIVE

North Shore Music Theatre in Beverly kicked off the theatre's annual holiday food drive November 11th with the opening performance of The Stars of the Lawrence Welk Show. The food drive, which will benefit various charitable organizations throughout the North Shore runs through all remaining Music Theatre events for 1991. The goal of 25,000 cans and boxes to be collected by the closing performance of "A Christmas Carol" on December 22, is the highest ever for the three-year-old drive and 50% more than the amount collected last year.

The Music Theatre's annual food drive began successfully in 1989 concurrent with the world premier of "A Christmas Carol." According to Music Theatre Executive Producer Jon Kimbell, "We've set our goal 50% higher this year and begun the drive over a month earlier because times are tough and more people need help. Based on support from the previous campaigns we are confident that our patrons will do all they can to meet this goal."

Donations of non-perishable food items can be brought to the theatre lobby during regular box office hours or when attending any of the following performances: Barbara Mandrell: Nov. 23 at 5:30 and 8:30 p.m.; Larry Gatlin and the Gatlin Brothers Country and Christmas Concert with special guest LaDonna Gatlin: Nov. 24 at 8 p.m. and The Christmas Pops Concert: Dec. 18 at 7:30 p.m. "A Christmas Carol" performances are Friday through Saturday: Dec. 13 through Dec. 20 at 8 p.m.; Matinees are Dec. 11; 14 and 21 at 2 p.m.; Sunday matinees are Dec. 15 and 22 at 3 p.m.; the Sunday evening performance is Dec. 22 at 7:30 p.m.

All performances are at the North Shore Music Theatre, 62 Dunham Road, Beverly. (Just off Rte. 128 at Exit 19) To reserve tickets by phone call (508) 922-8500.

FORUM EXAMINES BROADCAST INDECENCY

Local media and legal experts will gather at Boston University on Thursday, November 21 to discuss "Exposing the Limits of Speech: Broadcast Indecency." The forum will run from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in room 101 of the College of Communication, 640 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston.

Panelists will include David Brudnoy, talk show host at WBZ-AM; Oedipus, program director at WBCN-FM; Monica Collins, entertainment reporter at The Boston Herald; and Ronald Cass, dean of the Boston University Law School.

Admission is free and open to the public. For more information, please call (617) 353-9732.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL TO BE PRESENTED

A Christmas Carol, a holiday tradition, by Charles Dickens will be performed at the Merrimack Repertory Theatre on December 6 through December 22. Performances are Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m, with Saturday matinees at 3 p.m. and Sunday matinees at 2 p.m.

Tickets are priced from $17 to $20 with a $4 senior and student discount. Group discounts are also available. For information and reservations, call the Box office at (508) 454-3926.

The theatre is handicapped-accessible and is equipped with an assistive listening device. The Merrimack Repertory Theatre is located in Liberty Hall of the Lowell Memorial Auditorium at 50 East Merrimack St., Lowell.

DOLLS OF JAPAN FEATURED IN EXHIBIT

From religious figures to child's toys, dolls are universal throughout various human cultures, and much can be learned about a society by examining these miniature people. Ningyo: Dolls of Japan showcases the subtle beauty of more than twenty different styles of Japanese dolls, and honors the role that dolls and dollmaking play in the modern life of that country.

The opening of this travelling exhibition, which is sponsored by the Consulate General of Japan in Boston, is planned for 8 p.m. on Thursday, November 21, at the Peabody Museum of Salem.

Following the opening ceremony, ethnumousicologist Susan Asai will perform koto pieces from the 17th and 18th century, and refreshments will be served. Reservations are suggested by November 18. The reception is $3 for museum members, $5 for non-members; students with ID $2/$3. The exhibit will open to the public on November 22 and is free with museum admission.. Ningyo: Dolls of Japan runs through January 31, 1992. For more information or reservations, please call (508) 745-1876.

The exhibit, which presents the full range of the dollmaker's art in Japan, was organized by the Japan Foundation, and has travelled extensively in this country, in Canada, and in Latin America. The exhibit's visit to the Peabody is sponsored by the Consulate General of Japan in Boston. A free catalog of the exhibit will be available for visitors.

CACTUS AND SUCCULENT SOCIETY TO MEET

The newly formed Cactus and Succulent Society of Massachusetts will hold a meeting and plant swap on Saturday, December 7th, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Wellesley College greenhouses, off Rte. 135 in Wellesley. It is open to the public, free admission.

For information, call (617) 944-5959 or (508) 779-5456.

TEACHERS PRESENT SUZUKI SEMINAR

On Monday, November 4, the Merrimack Valley Music Teachers' Association sponsored a seminar on the Suzuki Method as Applied to Piano, with Nancy Eberial, Director of the Westford School of Music, as speaker. Ms. Eberial presented a program on the approach to music, invented by the Japanese-born Sunichi Suzuki during the 1940's and implemented by teachers throughout the world.

This was followed by demonstration lessons on three levels, with students from the Westford School of Music. Ms. Eberial, who founded the school, is a graduate of the University of Lowell Masters of Music program, and began her training with Suzuki Institutes in 1983. She participated in the Suzuki Festival held at the University of Lowell on November 16 and 17.

The Merrimack Valley Music Teachers' Association will sponsor a recital by students of member teachers on December 13 at Durgin Hall, University of Lowell. Anyone interested in knowing more about the association may contact Margo Higgins of North Andover at (508) 683-7033 or Kate Benson of Andover at (508) 470-0728.

STRIKE UP THE BANDS AT PHILLIPS

On Friday evening, November 22, at 7:30 p.m. the Music Department at Phillips Academy will present in concert the Academy Concert Band and Jazz Band. The Concert Band, under the baton of Vincent Monaco, will feature music of Prokofiev, Handel, Persichetti.

The Jazz Band, under the direction of Eric Thomas, will play Big Bands favorites and jazz standards. This concert will take place in Cochran Chapel, Chapel Avenue, on the Phillips Academy Campus.

Any inquiries about this program may be directed to Phillips Academy Music Department, (508) 749-4263. This concert is free of charge and the public is cordially invited to attend.

PRENATAL EXERCISES AT WINCHESTER

Winchester Hospital offers an exercise program to prepare women for the changes which occur before, during and after childbirth. The classes are designed to enhance a woman's pregnancy by teaching toning exercises and relaxation techniques.

Classes are held Mondays and Thursdays from 5:45 to 6:45 p.m. at Winchester Hospital. For dates and price information call Winchester Hospital's Health Education Department at (617) 756-2220.

STUDENT EXCHANGE HELPS SHAPE WORLD

Do you care how the U.S. appears to the rest of the world? Exchange students of International Student Exchange, Inc. (ISE) have found Americans to be very friendly and caring people. It is this message they take back to their own families and country.

Young people, regardless of nationality, who have the motivation and courage to become foreign exchange students are the ones who will soon be making political, economic and social decisions. Teens throughout the world are anxiously awaiting an opportunity to spend a school year in the U.S. While here these ISE students will absorb the language and culture, history and philosophy, values and sense of individualism and the fervor with which Americans embrace personal freedom.

An ISE student from Bolivia, now a Fullbright scholar, says America is misunderstood abroad. American families are in the unique position to re-shape that imperialistic impression and to positively influence the world - one student at a time.

For more information call the ISE Regional Office at 1-800-456-6335.

CARE OF THE NEWBORN CLASS

The first few days and weeks at home after the birth of a baby are exhilarating. But they may also raise many questions.

"Care of the Newborn," offered by Winchester Hospital, is a workshop which gives parents the latest information about the physical and psychological needs of the newborn. Topics for discussion include newborn appearance and reflexes, choosing a pediatrician, safety issues, feeding and more.

Care of the Newborn is held monthly. Please call Winchester Hospital for dates and price information at (617) 756-2220.

NATIONAL MACULAR DEGENERATION STUDY

Individuals ages 59 to 74 who have age-related macular degeneration are invited to participate in a national study being conducted at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston.

Candidates must have good vision in one or both eyes, and any decrease in vision must be due to macular degeneration. Evaluation includes free vision tests and eye examinations.

To volunteer, call Beth Del Bono at (617) 573-3533

Calendar from S-5

Players Park Playhouse in Burlington. Performances will continue on November 21-24 and 29-30, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 7 p.m. There's also a special matinee performance on November 30 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $10 ($9.50 for seniors and students) and group rates are available. To order, call (617) 229-2649.

"Tomfoolery" is a satisfying collection of the satirical and sometimes scandalous songs of Tom Lehrer. Lehrer began writing while teaching at Harvard. He contributed to the 60's "That Was The Week That Was" television show and has had a successful touring career. Songs in the show include "National Brotherhood Week," "Smut," "The Vatican Rag" and "Poisoning Pigeons in the Park."

PUPPETS BRING THE PILGRIMS TO LIFE

On Saturday, November 23, at 10:30 a.m., the "Children's Hour" series at the Kennedy Library presents an entertaining and enlightening program entitled, "Pilgrim Adventure to America."This delightful tale of the trials, tribulations and adventures faced by the early settlers, including the first Thanksgiving celebration, is performed by The Gerwick Puppets. Admission is free and open to the general public.

Founded in 1974, the group has presented over 200 performances in the New England area. Each production includes handpainted scenery, recorded classical and contemporary music, many puppets, special lighting effects and a substantial sound system. The goal of The Gerwick Puppets is to entertain with elaborate fantasy and lots of humor. The puppets often respond directly to the audience and children are encouraged to become involved vocally with the show.

At the center of "Pilgrims Adventure to America" is the story of the Brewster family -- William and Mary and their son, Love. Some of the highlights include: young Love Brewster playing with Dutch children in Holland; the stormy crossing of the Atlantic using a scale model of the Mayflower; and preparations for the first Thanksgiving.

Pilgrim Adventure to America is an informative historical drama appropriate for audiences age 7 to adult. It's a great way for a family to spend a Saturday morning. For further information call (617) 929-4523.

SINGLES DANCE IN TEWKSBURY

A singles dance will be held on Friday, November 22, at the K of C on Rte. 38 in Tewksbury from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight. The Winchester chapter of The Single Life (TSL), a non profit singles organization, invites all singles over age 21, whether never married, divorced, widowed or separated.

The cost is $3 for members; $5 for non-members. For more information call (617) 729-4664.

FREE CROHN'S, COLITIS MEETING

The Crohn's and Colitis Foundation of America Winchester Group will have an educational meeting from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on November 25th at Winchester Hospital. This meeting is free and open to the public.

Dr. Eric Duberman, Colorectal Surgeon at Winchester Hospital, will speak on "A Surgical Approach to IBD." For more information, call Winchester Hospital at (617) 729-9000, Ext. 2040.

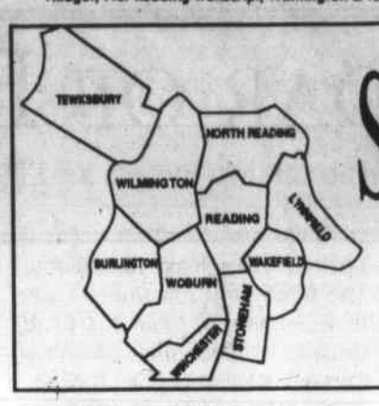

SIBLING CLASS AT WINCHESTER

A new baby is a new person. And for the baby's sibling, it is a time of growing and learning.

At Sibling Class, offered by Winchester Hospital, young siblings who are at least 2 1/2 years old, learn how that new baby fits into their family. And they learn they are important to their new baby brother or sister. Class participants will share in fun activities including learning how to diaper and feed a baby. A movie will be shown as well.

All children are encouraged to bring their dolls and teddy bears. This class is offered monthly on Sundays, 2 to 3 p.m. at Winchester Hospital.

For dates and price information, call Winchester Hospital at (617) 756-2220.

—Woburn middle school students have the opportunity to make giant strides into a successful future, thanks to "Science, Technology, Engineering Precollege Studies," sponsored by ESRA, Inc., a Woburn-based nonprofit organization dedicated to encouraging math and science literacy, and making a high-tech professional career possible for everyone, regardless of race, gender or ethnic origin.

To spark student interest in science, math and engineering, volunteers from local organizations such as Digital Equipment Corp., Hanscom Air Force Base and Northern Research and Engineering are using hands-on projects to teach scientific principles and methods.

"Fun with Chemistry" and "Introduction to Robotics" classes were held this fall on Saturday mornings at Woburn's Joyce Middle School.

—Burlington's Fox Hill PTO Playground Committee recently conducted a residential bottle and can collection, dropping off a plastic bag at each residence in the Fox Hill School area one Saturday and two weeks later, picking the bags up after 10 a.m. from each residence.

The collection was part of an ongoing drive at Burlington's Better Bottle and Can Redemption Center, focusing on funds for Phase II of playground construction.

—William Dooley and John Kuchinski, Tewksbury students at St. John's Prep, recently earned commended student status in the National Merit Scholarship Competition, placing in the top five percent nationally of those who took the 1989 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

—With the "opening" of Lynnfield "Middle" School, the faculty there is piloting several innovative programs.

New at the school is a science club which will operate as a science olympiad with student teams using science to solve problems; the idea being to encourage kids to become more involved in science after school.

Undergoing a major expansion is the intramural sports program, with 60 youngsters signed up already for tennis. Supervised by teacher Carolyn Harris and physical education teacher Edwina Kornechuk, an optional six-week after-school ski program will take place in Bradford on Mondays in January and February.

And, as a result of a state grant awarded to Harris, students will concentrate on geography, word processing and research skills in combination - and in preparation for their high school educations.

—"I was reminded the other day that, even after years of working in schools, the mysteries and complexities of how students learn and how best to teach them remain formidable," notes Winchester High Principal John Ritchie, in another area newspaper.

"There are as many pitfalls for teachers as there are for parents - even those who are sincere, well-intentioned, and intelligent. One of the biggest problems is our adult tendency to try to get students (or offspring) to where we think they should be, rather than to figure out where they are and meet them there."

VA questions and answers

Q: I was called to active duty during the Persian Gulf War. Can I get my old job back?

A: Federal law requires your reinstatement along with seniority and pay rate, plus increases that may have been granted in your absence. You must apply for reemployment within 90 days of separation. The law is administered by the U.S. Department of Labor. Your local chapter of Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve can also be helpful, should you encounter any difficulties.

IF A MAN'S HOME IS HIS CASTLE WHAT IS HIS GARAGE?

Workshop. Storage space. Tool shed. Private space. All of these and more. We know how important a garage is to you and so we build and design them to your exacting needs. As small or as large as you need. As simple or elegant as you want.

Don't think of it as your garage. Think of it as your second home.

IN ADDITION...

BEFORE

We don't take additions lightly, whether it's an extra bedroom, enclosed patio or even a project that more than doubles the original space. We help plan the project, give you money-saving options and complete the job so that it looks as if you had planned it this way from the start.

Colburn. Additional space, not additional problems.

AFTER

Garages starting at $4800.00

ANTHONY MANCONI

One of life's great mysteries is how a paperboy can pitch a no-hitter in a Little League Baseball Game but can't hit my front porch with a newspaper.

Who are the Shriners" They are everyday people in all walks of life who, without fanfare, horn-blowing or publicity, do good deeds that help others. They maintain many hospitals in many countries. The Burns Hospital in Boston is one that is world renown. They contribute in many ways to the betterment of their communities. They try to live their individual lives showing their religious and moral convictions by "example" rather than words. Bill Burton and many others of my personal friends fit that description perfectly.

Laughter is the best medicine. It stirs up the blood, expands the chest muscles, electrifies the nerves, clears the cobwebs from the brain and rehabilitates the whole body. With that in mind, I hope I can convince the Woburn Elks to begin rehearsals for a Ballet Recital in the spring. There will be enough laughs for everyone. Just seeing Jimmy Quinno, Bill McGarr, Joe Altavesta and Bobby Burns wearing TuTu's will be worth the price of admission. And how about seeing Don Harris, Bill Dodge, Bob Collins, John Callan and John Lampher doing a pirouette in the Dance of the Swan? They will also be featured in a "Tip Toe Thru the Tulips" routine that, with their combined weight, will be more like "The Elephants Stampede?" The finale will be "A Midsummer Night's Dream" that will honestly turn out to be a "Nightmare." Folks, this will all be for charity, although the performers will need Mercy!

Don Harris intends to retire from the Boston Edison but will still work part-time as a bartender nights, helping to keep the town "half-lit." My cousin, Maureen O'Donnell went on a three week diet and lost 21 days. She finally discovered a unique idea that did wonders for her. She taped a picture of a beautiful slender bikini-clad young woman inside of her refrigerator door. It was the ideal figure that Maureen hoped to attain. It worked like a charm for she lost 15 pounds in one month. However, in the same time period her husband Danny peered inside the refrigerator so often that he gained 22 pounds!

When a steamroller ran over Mario DiMiro's cat, he stood there with a long puss. Personality Winners: Gen Richey, Scott Allen, Capt. Matt Caraco, Matt Connelly, Coach Phil Vaccaro, Jimmy Murphy, John Ciano, Reading High School Principal Rena Mirkin, Lisa Memmolo, Fire Chief Leonard Redfern and Patrolman Jim Cormier, all of Reading; Debbie Gigante, Ann J. Cronin, Cory Canada, Greg Carcione, Caitlin O'Connor, Erin O'Donnell, Andrew Simonds, Rev. Carole Simkins, Rev. Bruce Young and Arlene Haggerty who just celebrated her 80th birthday, all of Woburn; Alex Martinelli, Edmond and Marie Baratta, Todd Rotondi, Rob Celiberti, Mike Szezepanski, Coach John Donohue, Jessica Lanzo, Marybeth O'Brien, Chris Ebanks, Mark Donnellan and Michelle Fleming, all of Winchester; Congratulations to Richard and Catherine Hogan on their 50th Wedding Anniversary, Caryl Dundorf, Nancy Berman, Stephanie Miano, Ginger Boermeester, Kerri Browne, Ava Gardiner, Jackie MacNeil, Laura Callahan, Gina DelCheccoio, Diane Jackson and Laura Murphy, all of Burlington.

Also, Jim and Diane McCarthy, Peter Kin-lap Chan and his lovely wife Laura, Amy Gerardo, Arlene Fiore, Amy Gebhard, Andy O'Brien, Albert H. Guay D.M.D., Diane Prince, Mary McLaughlin and Mary Venezia, all of Stoneham; Rev. Francis O'Sullivan, Atty. Mark M. Curley, Flora Hall Kite, Florence Rodgers, Joan Mathewson, Matt Dyle, Adam DiSchino, Carl McDonald, Carol Allman, Alissa Anderson and General John R. Galvin, all of Wakefield; Joanna Miller, Elizabeth Sleison, Virginia Fitzmeyer, Effie Gaw, Phyllis Strong, Town Administrator Stephen Daly, Maureen McHugh, Marie Brennick; Elaine Daskeiwicz, Donna Bruno, Fran Riley, Linda Hope and Cathy Lambert, all of North Reading; Wayland Fire Chief Mike Murphy (Mike is from Wilmington), Wilmington Fire Lt. John Brown, Jim Levesque, Gary Danehy, Bryan Burke, Bob Conshiglia, Jay Early, Jason Morgan, John O'Reilly, Bob Feming, Paula Arsenault, Teri LaBella and Barbara Bosco, all of Wilmington; Larry Rodges, Dana Boudreau, Kevin Cooper, Joanne Berube, Rita Simard, Michelle Bassett, Rachel Dowling, Frannie Abeli, Cathy McLean, Todd M. Bairstow and Christopher Dick, all of Tewksbury.

I told Bobby Burns of the Woburn Elks that they make shoes from alligator skins. "What's strange about that?" Bobby said, "They even make shoes from banana skins. They are called 'slippers'." The elevator operator said to Dennis Tully, "O'kay, you can get out now son." "Why do you call me son?" The elevator operator smiled and said, "I brought you up, didn't I?"

When fried chicken was served at a party, Kathy asked me, "Hey Fatso, should chicken be eaten with the fingers?" "No," I said, "the fingers should be eaten separately." When Hurricane Bob damaged my roof, I put in a claim for repairs. The insurance agent asked, "Chipper, when did you notice that the roof was leaking?" "When it took me three hours to finish my soup!"

I read with great interest that Gene Richey of Reading bought a solar electric car. "Plug it in, charge it up, and off you go." It's good for 35-60 miles before the batteries have to be recharged. I'll let you know more about this car later. A vacuum cleaner salesman rang Paul Rao's doorbell then said, "I know you need a vacuum cleaner." "How the heck do you know that?" Paul asked. "Well, the Woodchipper next door told me he has been borrowing yours for the last two years and it's about time 'you' bought a new one!"

YMCA swim team welcomes swimmers

The North Suburban YMCA Vikings (NSYV) Swim Team is still accepting new swimmers, ages 7-17, for the winter season. The team meets at the North Suburban YMCA in Woburn, Monday through Thursday evenings rom 6:30 until 8 p.m. (younger swimmers swim for the first hour). Practice is also held from 5 until 6:30 p.m. most Sundays.

The team will begin competing against other Division II Y teams in December. Most meets are held on Saturdays and the season ends in February or March, depending on the level of achievement of the individual swimmer. The Y team includes swimmers from Reading, Woburn, Lexington, Winchester, Burlington and Bedford.

The NSYV Swim Team also offers swimmers the opportunity to swim in U.S. and Swim Meets. These meets are held throughout New England and provide swimmers with the chance to swim in larger pools with electronic timing systems against competitive swimmers from this area.

A group of seven swimmers - Dan Kress, Jake Kissel, Kelly Archidiacono, Julie Silva, Jaime Silva, Carolyn Clark and Sarah Clark - recently traveled to Attleboro for the Attleboro Bluefish Fall Pentathalon. Dan Kress came away from this meet with a fourth place ribbon in the boys 13-14 butterfly with a time of 1:15.50 and a sixth place ribbon in the boys 13-14 100 yard breaststroke with a time of 1:19.14. To join the team just show up for a practice or call Donna Cerrato, Aquatics Directors at (617) 935-3270 for more information.

DENIS L. MAHER, founder of the D.L. Maher Company in 1941.

Third generation family business

Mahers celebrate 50 years in business

It is thought to be one of the ultimate certainties in our everyday lives -- turn on the faucet, and clean, clear water appears instantaneously.

People use it daily for cooking, drinking, bathing and dozens of other activities for which there is virtually no other healthy substitute.

So dependent are people on water that the meter in the home ticks at an average rate of 100 gallons of water per person per day.

The Maher family of Woburn is celebrating 50 years of supplying New England with this precious resource, serving a client list which ranges from municipalities to golf courses, industry to the homeowner.

Their municipal clients have numbered more than 90 over the years, including Woburn, Reading, Burlington and North Reading. The list of golf courses features the most prominent links in Massachusetts, including The Country Club in Brookline (host of the U.S. Open), Winchester Country Club and the Country Club of New Seabury on Cape Cod.

The D.L. Maher Company was formed in 1941 by Denis L. Maher, who was considered a pioneer in the field of gravel packed wells. He arrived in America from his native Ireland in 1924, and after 12 years experience in the water supply field with the B.F. Smith Company (1929-1933) and the P.D. Bowler Company (1933-1941), started his own business.

D.L. Maher Co.'s first rig was constructed in a garage on Leonard Street in Woburn. The company later relocated to Hart Street in Woburn, and in 1965 moved to their present location on Concord Street in North Reading.

The company has come a long way since then, but the primary service is still the same.

"Basically, we're well drillers," says E.J. "Jack" Maher, in a some-

Maher family S-15

"Cape Fear" Short Takes

by Rochelle Flynn

"Cape Fear" Starring Robert De Niro, Nick Nolte, Jessica Lange, Juliette Lewis. Directed by Martin Scorsese. Produced by Barbara De Fina. Screenplay by Wesley Strick. Based on a screenplay by James R. Webb and "The Executioners," a novel by John D. MacDonald. Rated R.

Truly disturbing, "Cape Fear" is the most effective, and ugliest, entertainment you may ever experience.

Director Martin Scorsese takes this 1962 psycho/sexual drama and remakes it by pushing it to a new level of violence that teeters between dangerous opera and lurid filth. "Cape Fear" will leave you perched on the edge of your seat and then send you home feeling as if you need a shower.

Robert De Niro is the magnetic force behind Scorcese's innovative camera work. No one in America, indeed in international filmdom, can play a psycho like De Niro. You have no doubt that his Max Cady is a superhuman force of pent-up energy that will be unleashed in a tidal wave of sexual fury and determined revenge. His target is the attorney who sent him to prison for 14 years by not defending him properly. Cady sees his mean of destruction in the attorney's family.

If De Niro is a time bomb ticking with negative energy, Nick Nolte is the bundle of nerves who knows, instinctively, he is no match for Cady's brilliant, evil mind. Nolte plays Sam Bowden, the successful lawyer who realizes he lacks the wherewithal to fight Cady, so he hires others to do the job he can't. Bowden isn't a pathetic coward, but a man with no taste for violence and a strong sense of self-delusion. The lawyer tricks himself into believing he must stay inside the confines of the law. Cady known, however, that Bowden has been known to conveniently drop his shield of morality, so he is goading him into just such a moment.

Jessica Lange turns in a strong performance as Bowden's bitter, pragmatic wife, but it is Juliette Lewis who has the strength to stand up to Cady. In turn tempted and tortured by her father's foe, Lewis is brilliant as an awkward teenager not yet inhibited by adult fears, and longing for sexual freedom. It is she who has an inner strength her father never had and her mother let fade away.

Scorsese takes the very real American fear of intrusion and amplifies it. As he turns up the volume with visual trickery, the director rubs our nerves raw. Yet there is a vein of dark humor coursing trough the tension in his morality play that makes it all the more entertaining. Scorsese wants us to know that his Max Cady is brilliant, and the humor helps to express Cady's insight into the brittle veneer of ethics shielding his former lawyer.

The last 25-minutes of the film are rife with Scorsese's trademark violence. He manages to make this family and their stalker feel very personal. Entertaining, but emotionally draining. It is not for the faint of heart.

Short Takes

Strictly Business is a comedy that replaces old-fashioned racism with old-fashioned sexism. The cornball humor and so-so plot don't hamper Tommy Davidson and Joseph C. Phillips, who turn in sharp and humorous performances, but any movie eschewing one form of bigotry for another has some serious problems. Rated PG-13 *1/2

People Under the Stairs is an extremely weird horror flick from Wes Craven that has more than a few chills in it, once you accept the premise. The people haunting the cellar of a former funeral parlor aren't the evil characters here, the real baddies are the demented couple who put them there. Lots of black humor mixed in with the gore, but not for the easily offended. Rate R. **

Little Man Tate is the touching story of a young genius raised by a well-intentioned, but uneducated waitress. A heartfelt story that is genuinely funny and poignant, it proves that director Jody Foster has as much talent behind the camera as in front. Rated PG. ****

Billy Bathgate just doesn't have the energy you'd expect from a gangster flick. The plot follows neophyte hoodlum Bill (Loren Dean) as he learns the ropes from unstable Dutch Schultz. Dustin Hoffman is great as the older mobster, the settings, costumes and acting are equally fine. But the plot is a snoozer and the energy level idles in neutral. Rated R. **

Other People's Money is a mediocre adaptation of the play, with Danny DeVito as the shark-like Wall Street liquidator who sets his sights on a small, New England cable company, owned by Gregory Peck. For a comedy, this flick has very few laughs. Most of the action is devoted to DeVito and Penelope Ann Miller, who square off in a battle of the sexes that tries, and fails, to be meaningful. Rated R. **

Paradise teams Melanie Griffith and hubby Don Johnson in a powerful story of a married couple who learn to cope with the death of their son when they temporarily take in a young boy. Top notch acting, writing and direction combine to make this emotional drama ring true. Rated PG-13.  1/2

Shattered is a fast-paced, if unbelievable thriller in which Bob Hoskins and Tom Berenger try to get the goods on Greta Scacchi. While the ending is certainly explosive, it is also far-fetched. Hoskins, however, gives a great performance as an asthmatic, animal-loving detective. Rated R.  1/2

Frankie and Johnny stars Al Pacino and Michelle Pfeiffer as a couple of unhappy misfits who hope to find love in each other's arms. The pacing is uneven, due to a storyline which peters out about two-thirds of the way through, but the acting is fab. The two stars literally make this film. Rated R. ***

The Fisher King blends the brutal realities of the 20th century with the romantic ideals of medieval literature. Robin Williams plays a homeless, half-mad professor who teaches compassion to disc jockey Jeff Bridges. Everything about this film is refreshingly creative, from the acting, to the script to director Terry Gilliam's gorgeous visuals. A romance in the truest sense of the word. Rated R. ****

"Classical-Avant Folk" music at the Linden Tree

AMY MALKOFF AND RAYMOND GONZALES will appear at Linden Tree Coffeehouse in Wakefield on November 23rd.

On Saturday, November 23rd, the Linden Tree Coffeehouse's monthly concert will feature the new talent of Raymond Gonzales and Amy Malkoff.

Both Malkoff and Gonzales are musically trained. Gonzales has received numerous awards and honors. His compositional background and interest in a wide variety of musical genres have inspired him to write in an ever-expanding array of style. Malkoff has performed since the age of five.

Her off-the-wall observations have become a trademark of their performances.

When asked what type of music they play, they will tell you "Classical-Avant Folk." Using only voice, steel-string and classical guitar, it's nothing like you've heard before. Their style has been described as "original," "witty" and "sophisticated."

Gonzales and Malkoff have played at many other coffeehouses, clubs and colleges in and outside the New England area. Their first full length recording, "Curly-Haired Humans," was released last year. One of the cuts has been chosen by Christine Lavin to be on her latest CD.

Opening the evening at 8 p.m. will be an "open mike" set. Anyone who would like to perform please call (617) 246-2836 to reserve a spot.

The Linden Tree Coffeehouse is held in the social hall at the Unitarian-Universalist Church, 326 Main St., Wakefield. Hot coffee and teas and delicious baked goods will be available. Admission is $5.50 for over two hours of live entertainment

Youth Symphony plays "Peter and the Wolf"

On Saturday and Sunday, November 23 and 24, the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras will present "Peter and the Wolf and other musical fables," at the Tsai Performance Center, featuring Prokofiev's classic tale narrated by John Silber, president of Boston University.

Also included in the program are Aaron Copland's John Henry, a musical portrait of the legendary railroad hero, and Fanfare for the Common Man as well as selected movements of Beethoven's Symphony No. 8. In between each piece, Music Director David Commanday will be giving a guided tour of the music for the younger people in the audience.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. on Saturday, November 23 and at 3 p.m. on Sunday, November 24 and will take place at Boston University's Tsai Performance Center, located at 685 Commonwealth Avenue in Boston, right off the Green Line's B.U. East stop on the "B" train. Tickets for both concerts are $10 for adults and $5 for children and are available through the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras by calling (617) 353-3348 or at the door on the day of the performance.

Christmas at the Newport Mansions

The preservation Society of Newport County is starting early to plan a very special holiday season at the mansions in December. For the second year in a row, The Breakers and Green Animals Topiary Garden will be decorated and open to the public. The Elms and Chateau-sur-Mer will also be decorated in a traditional style. The Breakers, The Elms and Chateau-sur-Mer will be open weekends from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and weekdays from 3 to 7 p.m. from November 29 through December 22 and daily from December 26 through 30. The houses will have themes: "A Vanderbilt Christmas" at The Breakers, a "Victorian Christmas at Home" at Chateau-sur-Mer, "Joyeux Noël" at The Elms and "A Child's Country Christmas" at Green Animals. All of the houses will be closed on December 24 and 25.

The Breakers, built in 1895 by Richard Morris Hunt for Cornelius Vanderbilt, is the most magnificent of the Newport "cottages." It will have beautifully decorated Christmas trees in the Great Hall and Library, and the formal Dining Room will be set for Christmas dinner. There will be music of the season and egg nog and cookies will be served to visitors. The Breakers will be featured on Sunday, December 1, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Chateau-sur-Mer, built for William S. Wetmore in 1852, will be decorated with a traditional Victorian theme. The house will be decked with some of the hundreds of poinsettias that are grown in the Society's greenhouses for the holidays. The Christmas tree in the Ballroom will be decorated with traditional Victorian ornaments and the Dining Room will be set for a holiday dinner. Chateau-sur-Mer will be featured on Sunday, December 8, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

A taste of the old country will come to The Elms as the Society celebrates a "Joyeux Noël." The Elms, a beautiful mansion modeled after the Chateau d'Asnieres near Paris, will be appropriately decorated in a French theme. The Dining Room will be set for an 18th century French dinner, and the Ballroom will have a Christmas tree adorned with silver and white ornaments and white poinsettias. Egg nog and cookies will be served and there will be French music of the season. The Elms will be featured on Sunday, December 15, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

On Thursday, December 19 at 3 p.m., there will be a reading of Charles Perrault's classic tale "The Twelve Dancing Princesses" for children, ages 4 to 7. It will be in the Ballroom of The Elms near the Christmas tree and reservations are required, (401) 847-6543. Admission will be free to members of the Preservation Society; non-members $7, children $4 (includes tour of the house).

"A Child's Country Christmas" at Green Animals Topiary Gardens in Portsmouth will be a celebration of the holidays in a simple but festive 19th century style. The Brayton house will be decorated to re-create a family Christmas morning complete with a Christmas tree in the nursery bedecked with traditional handmade ornaments. "A Child's Country Christmas" will be featured from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, December 22. All Sunday openings at these four homes are a part of the "Christmas in Newport" program.

On Saturday, December 7 at 10:30 a.m., a wreath making workshop for adults will be held in the Greenhouse at Green Animals. Materials are provided and reservations are required, (401) 847-6543. Registration is $10 for Preservation Society members; non-members, $15 and you keep the wreath!

For a free color brochure listing the holiday schedule, contact the Preservation Society, 118 Mill Street, Newport, RI 02840. Telephone (401) 847-1000.

JOB MART TO S-16

Maher family from S-8

what understated fashion. In reality, three generations of Mahers have been pioneers in groundwater drilling, building one of the most versatile, technologically advanced companies in the industry.

Jack Maher was the first to follow in his father's footsteps, assuming a partnership role in the company in 1956. Jack was followed by his brother Denis in 1970. The two recall clearly the drought of the 1960's, which struck the entire Northeast and dropped the water level in Woburn's Horn Pond by more than 10 feet.

"The drought of the mid-1960's is when people really became aware of how dependent they are on water," recalls Jack. "Until that time, it was always guaranteed that when you turned on the faucet, water came out."

Denis calls water "the least thought of, most abused of all our utilities."

Today, a third generation of the Maher family is committed to continuing the growth of the company, despite what history may say about family businesses.

Jack's sons Kevin and Robert took over the positions of President and Treasurer in 1989, and they say the third generation has no intention of letting history stand in the way of the company's growth.

"We are very proud to be taking this company into its 50th years," says Kevin, who holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Geology/Geophysics from Boston College, and completed post-graduate studies in Applied Hydrogeology at Wright State University.

"People have told us the third generation loses touch with the goals and dreams of the first generation, but I don't think that is true in our case. We are well aware of the effort that my grandfather put into starting this company," says Robert, also a graduate of Boston College with a degree in Economics.

The second and third generations of Mahers have not been content, however, to simply carry on in the water supply industry. The key to their growth has been diversification.

Also headquartered on Concord Street, under the umbrella of The Maher Companies, is The Maher Corporation. Founded in 1970, The Maher Corporation is a manufacturer's representative for water and wastewater treatment equipment.

"The Maher Corporation has been an important addition for us," says its President, Denis Maher. "When we first started in 1970 our goal was to fill in the valleys of the seasonal well drilling business." Since then, The Maher Corporation has grown to become one of the leading treatment equipment representatives in New England.

"We now have the capabilities to offer equipment and services from the small community water systems to the large treatment facilities such as Deer Island," adds Denis. "The combination of the D.L. Maher Company and The Maher Corporation means that we are in the water business from beginning to end."

Over the last decade the D.L. Maher Co. has focused on diversification. While the water supply portion of the business consists of finding, servicing and replacing existing supplies, the new emphasis is on environmental issues.

Just recently, The Maher Companies headed west and founded Maher Environmental, Inc., an environmental drilling services company based in Tempe, Arizona.

Among the state-of-the-art equipment owned by The Maher Companies are their Dual Rotary drill rigs, which can penetrate the most difficult boulder or cobble foundations. There are only 30 such rigs in the world, eight in the United States, and three of them are owned by The Maher Companies.

Many of the major contamination sites are known as Superfund Sites, so designated by the Environmental Protection Agency.

"Some of the major Superfund Sites can cost tens of millions of dollars to clean up," adds Kevin Maher. Such staggering costs are borne either by those parties responsible for contamination, if they can be determined, or by the federal government.

Kevin and Bob Maher are not the only members of the third generation who are carrying on the family tradition. Joining them are Jack's sons Peter, John and David, and and Denis' son Denis.

Between the three generations, the Mahers have seen and done it all, from apparently striking gold (it turned out to be brass) to discussing environmental issues with famous recording artists.

"Livingston Taylor used to call me," says Kevin. "We drilled a well for him, and he was very interested in what we were doing. The guy just loves water!"

So does the Maher family.

Woodchips From S-7

Last summer a man was walking along the shore of the beach at low tide. He would stop now and then, pick up a starfish, walk to the water's edge and toss it into the water. An elderly gentleman watching him said, "I know that the hot sun will kill the starfish in a short time - but - there are so many of them on this long beach, you won't have time to save them all. Your intentions are commendable," he continued, "but, what good is what you are doing?" The man picked up a starfish, looked at it for a moment and tossed it into the water. He then said, "Sir, it's doing this one a lot of good!" Folks, just because we can't ever hope to feed and clothe every hungry and destitute human being in this big wide world of ours is no reason why we should stop trying.

Folks, Right is Right even if nobody is right. By the same token, Wrong is Wrong even if everybody is wrong. When Fr. Burns worked in a bakery as a young man, an irate woman rushed in and shouted, "Look! I found this fly in my raisin bread!" "So what?" snapped Bobby, "give me the fly and I'll give you two raisins!" Kathy forced me to go to a church rummage sale with her and I found out why. The huge sign on the church lawn said, "Ladies, bring something not worth keeping and too good to throw away. Don't forget to bring your husbands!"

DO THIS FOR YOURSELF.

At Private Healthcare Systems Ltd., we believe that teamwork makes your work a lot more fun and effective. That's why, in our young and growing managed-care firm, we provide a friendly and professional environment where management and staff pull together in an effort to ensure high-quality, cost-effective medical care. And while we do this for the benefit of patients, hospitals, and insurance companies, joining us could be one of the best things you'll ever do for yourself.

Customer Service Representative

We'll train you to take calls from our clients, answer their questions or redirect their inquiries. If you like working with people and are interested in the health-care field, all you will need are excellent communication skills, previous office experience, and typing or data entry experience. We find that familiarity with medical terminology and previous customer service experience are helpful.

Administrative Support Clerk

As a member of our administrative support staff, you will have extensive telephone contact with doctors' offices and hospitals. You will also provide clerical support to our nursing staff including photocopying, filing, and in-house distribution. This position requires a pleasant telephone manner and strong organizational skills. Light typing skills are a plus.

Come to PHCS and you will enjoy a great salary and benefits that respond to your needs, including 3 weeks' vacation, a dependent care savings plan, a nonsmoking office, on-site aerobics and much more. Do something great for yourself now—give us a call at (617) 861-5654 or send resume to Private Healthcare Systems Ltd., 20 Maguire Road, Lexington, MA 02173. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Over 100,000 affected annually by carpal tunnel syndrome

Carpal tunnel syndrome. It's the modern condition associated with computers the way hearing loss was associated with working in the mills and housemaid's knee with domestic labor.

It's estimated that more than 100,000 people every year are afflicted with this condition, which can be extremely painful.

Carpal tunnel syndrome occurs when, often due to constant hyper-extension of the wrist at a computer terminal, a fibrous band at the wrist tightens and exerts intense pressure on the median nerve, which supplies sensation to the thumb, index finger and long finger. The condition results in intense pain, then a weakening in the hand and fingers.

For Jody Ballistri of Reading, it began as a tingling in her fingers, it quickly turned to numbness, and finally, pain.

"I used to pray and meditate to deal with the pain, which was excruciating. The pain I've had from toothaches or root canals was minor compared to this raw, horrible pain. Some nights I used to just sit up in bed and cry all night with the pain. It used to really frighten my son, who'd wake up sometime in the middle of the night and hear me," she says.

"At work, I found my arm would hurt when my wrist was in certain positions. The pain would get so bad I couldn't move my arm at all. Then I started dropping things. One day I dropped a full cup of black coffee on someone, and I was so upset that I ran into the ladies room and cried. I could have really hurt him!"

"COMPUTER DISEASE" or carpel tunnel syndrome, afflicted Jody Ballistri of Reading. She is one of an estimated 100,000 people who are treated annually.

The condition was clearly affecting her everyday life at home as well as at work. She found she needed help to open jars and she couldn't lift anything heavy with her affected right hand. She soon found herself unable to crochet or write poetry either, two activities that had always given her great pleasure and satisfaction.

"I compensated by virtually becoming left-handed. I really completely stopped using my right hand. Still," she says, "I was really afraid at first of having surgery done. All I knew was that it involved doing something with my nerves, and that it was my right hand."

Realizing that she'd developed 'the computer disease,' she began asking people who'd had corrective surgery questions about the procedure. Unfortunately, most people she talked to had had the surgery when it was still new and unrefined.

"People showed me huge scars and I got more and more nervous about having anything done. But I'd been to see Dr. Kohli before to have a growth removed. I remembered how kind, gentle and professional he'd been, so I went back to him for this. Look at my scar. You can hardly see a thing," she says, turning her hand over palm-side up. She points to a tiny white line that is virtually invisible as it blends in with the natural lines in her hand.

Dr. Gurmander S. Kohli, who is medical director of the Center for Plastic Surgery and Personal Development at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham, and at Boston University Medical Center, specializes in plastic surgery, reconstructive and hand surgery and craniomaxilliofacial surgery. He explains that the usual first course of treatment is to relieve the pressure on the nerve by either supplying a patient with styrofoam rests to reduce hyper-extension at the terminal, or counseling a two to three week break away from computer work. Sometimes patient's wrists are also placed in splints to restrict movement and reduce pressure. If this treatment proves ineffective, a surgeon makes a tiny incision close to the wrist to cut the fibrous band and release the median nerve.

Ms. Ballistri tried styrofoam rests at her work station, but to no avail.

"Dr. Kohli said I'd been through all the stages of the condition. In fact, he said the nerve was held in so tight that it popped free as soon as he made the incision," she recalls.

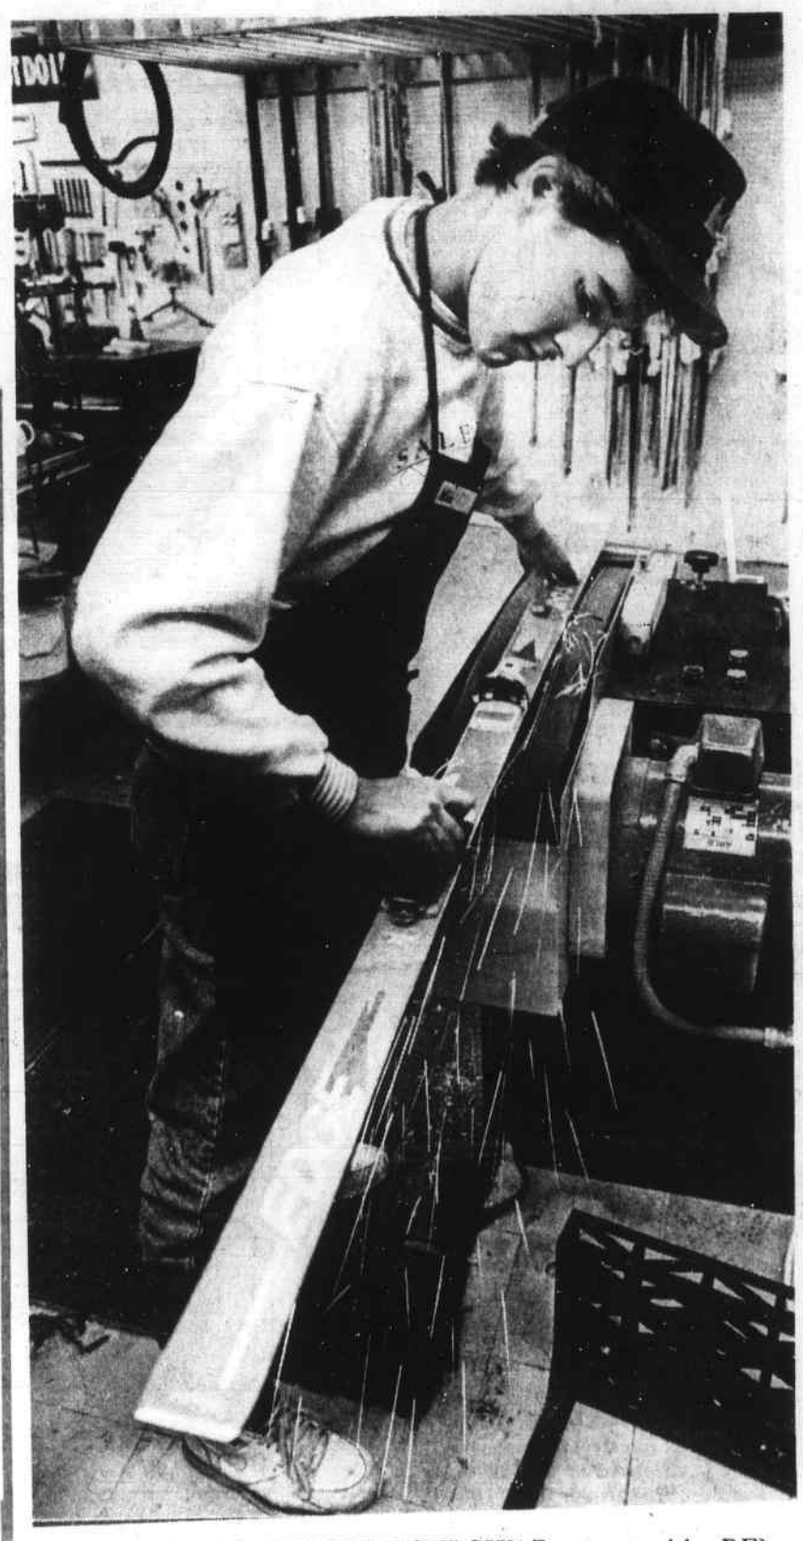

Three weeks after the procedure, "there is still some pain. But now when I get a shooting pain up my arm I know it's a healing pain. Now my hand feels like part of my body again, not like something useless just hanging here. I'd do it again in a minute, especially with Dr. Kohli there. He gave the confidence to go through with the surgery and regain my independence," she says.

The loss of independence the condition caused was particularly hard for Ms. Ballistri, a single parent who has raised four children entirely on her own. She gives inspiring illustrations of her resourcefulness in providing for the now college-age children when they were young.

"Once we found a big piece of formica which had been thrown away. We put new papers around it, and used that as our dining room set. It's always been important to me to provide for my children and myself alone, without any help. I'm so grateful to Dr. Kohli for giving me my independence back."
